Owen D. Young Says No.
Japan's Proud Army.
Forty at a Cock Fight.
Who Has a Bright Smile?

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE POLITICAL news of the day is that Owen D. Young has removed himself from the possibility of a Democratic nomination for the presidency, emphatically and sincerely. In a letter to John Crowley, publisher of the Little Falls Times, Mr. Young's home paper, Mr. Young concludes with these words:

"May I say definitely and finally that I cannot, for reasons which are so controlling as not to be open to argument, accept the nomination for the presidency, if made."

Nothing could be more "final" than that. The statement will shock many influential politicians who have been working in Mr. Young's interest, although apparently without his knowledge or approval, and have felt sure that Mr. Young would be nominated.

THE JAPANESE army is high spirited. Its officers feel that THEY should rule, not any namby-pamby civil government. To express their views, a group of 18 officers murdered the prime minister of Japan, Inukai, 77 years old, wounding six while forcing their way into the old man's house. In connection with this achievement, banks were bombed.

When the work was done, the 18 that had carried out the ideas of the Japanese military forces surrendered.

MEMBERS OF the Japanese cabinet and other high officials know of "societies vowed to murder" that would kill them off like rats, should they offend Japanese ideas.

The old man, murdered on Sunday, probably knew, after the Shanghai truce which offended the army, that his life would not last long. He showed courage, as do other officials of Japan.

What the Japanese do with their prime minister, their army and their navy, is their business, as long as they did not do it to us.

It is not for us to criticise, but to observe events and learn what we can.

We have little right or inclination to criticise other nations in view of our own crime wave, which is not exactly based "on patriotism."

Its foundations are bootlegging created by prohibition, and it makes Japanese "murders of patriotism" seem mild.

IN NORTHERN New York forty men were arrested at a cock fight. The police got fifteen live game cocks, seven dead ones, killed in battle for the amusement of "primates" standing around the cock-pit. Fighting cocks have their natural spurs cut off and sharp steel needles are attached to the stumps. The thrust of a needle through the brain ends the fight.

The birds will endure unlimited suffering from other wounds and fight on. It is hard for us to realize that that was once a favorite sport of English kings, or that serious Englishmen not long ago objected to a ban on bull baiting, saying that Englishmen if they did not see blood might lose courage.

It was necessary for them to see savage bulldogs tear the muzzles of miserable tethered bulls.

AN INTELLIGENT advertiser offers substantial prizes for "the brightest smile in America." Send a snapshot, and if yours is the brightest smile, or bright enough, you get a prize. Joseph P. Day, New York's real estate king, should enter that contest. Anybody who can smile, with real estate at its present levels, as Mr. Day was smiling recently, deserves a prize.

To be cheerful while conditions are pleasant is easy. It takes real character to smile through 1932.

AN ADMIRABLE old American ship builder, Capt. Dollar, is dead in his eighty-eighth year. Dead also is William H. Todd. One built ships on the Pacific Coast, the other on the Atlantic. Capt. Dollar was an immigrant from Scotland. William H. Todd was the son of an Irish immigrant.

The two men paid hundreds of millions to American labor, each worked until the day of his death. BUT BOTH WOULD BE EXCLUDED FROM THIS COUNTRY UNDER OUR PRESENT IMMIGRATION LAWS, that would keep out such men as have built this country.

HISTORIANS OF the future, who investigate original documents now prepared by the accountants, Klein, Hinds and Finke, investigating deals of Kreuger, Swedish match man, with American financiers, will find interesting facts. Kreuger was able to get fifty million dollars here from financiers who hadn't the slightest chance of making a cent.

Stock that sold for a hundred dollars a share is worth perhaps a tenth of a cent. Gullible American high finance got for its money an American match company, so arranged that it could not make any money.

This country was certainly drunk with money and was taking dreams for reality in 1929. It is probably just as well that the nation woke up.

THE USUAL news comes from India that thinks it wants to be free, but can't quite give up the excitement and the delight of battle. Hindus and Moslems, fighting for three days past, have killed 42 and injured 500.

Fighting still going on. The British, whose rule is made easy by India's religious hatred, find it necessary to open fire on both Hindus and Mohammedans.

SENATE VOTE DEVICE QUIZ AT END

Armstrong and Parkinson Vote to Drop Inquiry as Citizens' Counsel Quits

BULLETIN.

The State's investigation into the purchase of vote machines by Allegheny County was abandoned temporarily and possibly permanently this afternoon on vote of Senators Armstrong and Parkinson. This move followed announcement by Senator Harris, the committee minority, that Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay had quit the investigation.

The State Senate's investigation into the sale of $1,000,000 worth of vote machines to Allegheny County today struck a wall which threatened to shut out any further revelations concerning the distribution of $169,000 paid as royalties on the contract to four Pittsburghers.

The barrier was created when Senators Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., and C. W. Parkinson, overruling Senator Frank J. Harris, decided that Attorney Hiram D. Hirsh, one of the four, need not tell how the royalties were to have been paid on an earlier contract.

LINDSAY ANGERED

Hirsh's counsel, Attorney O. K. Eaton, had objected to the question, put by Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, counsel for the Citizens Vote Machine Committee.

Lindsay threatened to quit the investigation, walked to the door of the courtroom as if to carry out his threat, then apparently changed his mind. He said:

"We can't get anywhere if we are blocked every time we hit a vital spot. If that is the way this investigation is to be conducted, you can count me out.

"I am not going to pull anyone's chestnuts out of the fire. If reasonable questions cannot be answered, I'll have no part of it. No one is going to say Lindsay had his full chance and could not develop anything."

HIRSH TESTIFIES

Hirsh was the first witness today. In previous hearings at Harrisburg it was brought out that he and three other Pittsburghers received $169,000 from the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, of Baltimore, from the sale of the machines to Allegheny County, while the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and Commissioner E. V. Babcock were the board majority.

Following Eaton's victory, Senator Harris adjourned the meeting, explaining that the committee was without counsel and indicating that when the hearing reopened this afternoon counsel from the Attorney General's office would be supplied.

Survivors Tell of Harrowing Scenes On Doomed Ship

ADEN, Arabia, May 17.—(AP.)—Eighty to 100 persons, most of them first-class passengers, were trapped aboard the blazing French motorship George Philippar yesterday and some of them must have lost their lives, survivors declared when they arrived here today aboard the British steamer Contractor.

The fire, discovered when the ship was off Cape Guardafui, Italian Somaliland, spread, with extreme rapidity from the aft of the vessel, driving the passengers toward the bow.

HARROWING SCENES

There were harrowing scenes as the passengers strove to reach their lifeboats amid the smoke and confusion. Some of them, apparently, were overcome before they were able to do so.

Some of the rescued were unable to reach the lifeboats, so they jumped into the shark-infested water and were picked up later.

More than 100 of the vessel's passengers, reported to total about 600, were on the Contractor, and nearly all of them were dressed in nightclothes. They had lost all their belongings.

FAMILIES PARTED

There was great distress and anxiety among the survivors as husbands, wives and children had become separated in the confusion of the last frightful minutes on the Georges Philippar. Men did not know whether their wives still lived. Women worried about the fate of their children. They could not learn here whether their loved ones had been picked up by other rescue vessels.

The Contractor brought into port a child of 2½ years and an infant. Nobody knew what had happened to their parents.

TERRORISM DENIED

PARIS, May 17.—(AP.)—Adrian Monge, director of the Compagnie des Messageries Maritimes, owners of the French motorship Georges Philippar, which was destroyed by fire yesterday, said today there was no substance in the theory that terrorists caused the disaster.

The fire started several days ago in freight holds and it was not perceptible until it burst forth with such violence that all normal safety measures were in vain, M. Monge declared.

ULTIMATUM SERVED BY JAP ARMY

Military Leaders Serve Notice Demanding New Cabinet Be Non-Partisan

TOKIO, May 17.—(AP.)—The army swung its mailed fist upon Japanese politics today and dictated that a national, non-partisan cabinet must be named to succeed that of the slain Premier Inukai.

The army's ultimatum completely upset the plans of the political leaders. During the day it had been virtually decided that Kisaburo Suzuki, present home minister, should head another Seiyukai party government.

Mr. Suzuki was named head of the party earlier in the day. The selection was made as a means of

AIDES TALK ON $50,000 RANSOM FRAUD

Breckinridge First Witness At Bronx Inquiry; 'Jafsie' Ready to Present Data

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 17.—An inquiry into the futile negotiations between Dr. John F. Condon, "Jafsie," and five men who said they had the Lindbergh baby, got under way today with the appearance of Col. Henry Breckinridge before the Bronx grand jury.

Col. Breckinridge, confidential adviser of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose baby was found dead four a half miles from his home, was the first witness at the first legal action Lindbergh tragedy.

EVADES THRONGS

Col. Breckinridge testified for an hour and a half. After he left the grand jury room Max Rosenheim and Milton Gaglio, friends of Dr. Condon, who were with him when he first visited the Lindbergh home, were called.

A large crowd had congregated outside the courthouse. Col. Breckinridge evaded the crowd by slipping out through a rear door.

Rosenheim, upon emerging from the courtroom, said:

"All I can say is that my visit to the Lindbergh estate is not the only thing I had to do with the case."

He would answer no further questions.

The jury will determine whether indictments should be handed down against the five men, who may be killers, kidnapers or merely opportunists.

'JAFSIE' DATA READY

Dr. Condon himself was in court as the procedure began. With him was a brief case full of papers, including letters from the supposed kidnapers which convinced the Fordham professor that he should hand over $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money to them. Al Reich, former boxer, who aided "Jafsie," was also present.

It is said Col. Lindbergh himself may appear later.

The inquiry will concern itself with the payment of the ransom money, not with the murder of the child, which took place in New Jersey and is out of the jurisdiction of the authorities here.

The action is regarded as important because there are many who

Betty Gow Rumors Again Put on Air

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP.)—Rumors involving Betty Gow, nurse of the murdered son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, continued to circulate today, apparently broadcast by some obscure radio station whose identity the leading broadcasting companies were unable to check.

Today's story, denied by all official and authentic sources, was that Miss Gow had confessed to throwing the baby out the window to the kidnapers on the ground below. Police have said repeatedly that Miss Gow is in no way implicated in the kidnaping.

Mother of Lindy Resumes Teaching

DETROIT, May 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was back in the classroom at Cass Technical High School today, teaching her pupils in chemistry, after a brief visit at the home of her son in New Jersey.

Mrs. Lindbergh left Detroit last Friday, following the discovery of the body of her grandson, kidnaped March 1 from his crib.

Congress Won't Quit In June

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP.)—Republican Senate leaders have advised Speaker Garner that it will be necessary to recess Congress in June for the conventions and that a summer session will be required to complete pending business.

Speaker Garner said he and Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, conferred yesterday with Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, president pro tempore, and Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, and were informed they felt it would be impossible for Congress to complete its business by June 10, as originally planned.

Garner said, however, that he preferred the Republican Senators to make their own statements with regard to the recess. The Texas Democrat said if Congress did adjourn it would probably reassemble in July or August.

Lasky, Film Pioneer, Out of Paramount

NEW YORK, May 17.—(INS.)—Jesse L. Lasky, one of the pioneers in the development of the motion picture industry, today retired as first vice president of the Paramount Publix Corporation.

He is the second high official in the company to retire this year. Sidney R. Kent resigned as a vice president and director in January to head the Fox Film Corporation.

THE PROBLEM

EXHAUSTION of public works funds in Ben Avon, Kennedy Township and Clairton has thrown heads of 707 families onto direct relief, the Emergency Association reports.

THE REMEDY

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men, start the nation back to prosperity.

COUNTY ROLLS CUT $50,000

The County Commissioners today made sweeping eliminations from the payroll.

On resolutions offered by Chairman C. C. McGovern, they abolished 10 divisions and two sections in the Department of Public Works and reduced the payroll in the Bureau of Statistics from $33,000 to $24,000.

Other moves included abandoning the county garage at Blawnox, transferring the Bureau of Motor Vehicles to the Department of Properties and Supplies, and switching the Division of Signs and Safety to the control of the director of Highways, Bridges and Tunnels.

Commissioner McGovern estimated roughly that these changes would reduce the payroll $50,000. More than 100 employes are believed affected, although the actual number may prove greater.

The designing sections of the Bureau of Roads and the Bureau of Bridges were those abolished. The abolished divisions were: Administrative, general office; in the Bureau of Bridges, construction, general office, bridge records, maintenance; Bureau of Roads, engineering, asphaltic concrete, administrative and general office.

The four resolutions which accomplished these changes also ordered the abolishment of "all unnecessary positions" and instructed that these employes be put on the waiting list.

VATICAN CITY, May 17.—(AP.)—A papal encyclical asking the world to pray for relief from "today's sad condition of the human race" will be published tomorrow in the Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano.

Ten-minute summaries of the document will be broadcast from the papal radio station in various languages. A wave length of 50.26 will be used.

Kline Moves to Halt Future Irregularities

Demands Certificate From Controller As to Warrants

As the legality of the city's check-signing machine was under scrutiny today, Mayor Kline made what was interpreted as his first move to buttress his petition to throw out the malfeasance count on which he was found guilty by a Butler County jury.

Controller J. P. Kerr, in a statement, revealed that the mayor has demanded that hereafter all warrants for supplies must be preceded by a certificate from the Controller showing the goods have been received and comply with the contract specifications.

The count on which the Mayor was held guilty charged that he had signed a warrant for $5,000 to Henry Braun for trucks before the trucks were delivered.

The defense move to quash the count is to be argued before Judge Thomas D. Finletter, of Philadelphia, the trial judge.

Controller Kerr stated the question as to the legality of the check-signing machine was being investigated. Meanwhile the device will not be used.

Kline and his co-defendant, Bertram L. Succop, former supplies director, were in conference today with their counsel.

Actions for a new trial and arrest of judgment for both defendants will be filed in the Butler County courts this week.

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP.)—Dr. Smith Ely Jellife, alienist, who says he never was paid for his services at the second trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, testified today in the trial of his $10,000 suit against Thaw.

Jellife stated he had been paid for his services as a defense alienist during the first trial, but that he had not been paid for the time and attention he gave Thaw during the second trial and during Thaw's stay in a state asylum. William A. Hyman, the doctor's attorney, said:

"Dr. Jellife received a nice letter of thanks from Thaw. That is all he ever received for saving Thaw from the chair—and there is no doubt whatever that he saved Thaw from the electric chair."

SMITH'S STAND FOR SALES TAX, PROSPERITY BONDS PRAISED

PEOPLE DEMAND ACTION, SAYS EX-GOVERNOR

Backs Hoover Demand for Free Hand in Economy, but Hits President's Program

International News Service

NEW YORK, May 17.—Approval and praise were received from all parts of the country today for former Gov. Alfred E. Smith for his challenging plan for action by the federal government to relieve the prevailing economic situation.

Calling on Congress to forget "politics and sectionalism," Smith in an outspoken public address last night demanded the federal budget be balanced, urged adoption of a multi-billion sales tax and modification of the Volstead act to permit legalization of beer, wines and beer.

URGES PROSPERITY BONDS

As another remedy for business and industry Smith proposed an extensive government public works program to be financed through a prosperity bond issue.

Drastic economies and reorganization of the federal government as proposed by President Hoover as one step in this direction were urged by Smith himself a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He declared it the patriotic duty of every member of Congress "from now on this adjournment to discourage and avoid all bloc cabals, insurgencies and mass-wump tactics of whatever name they may be called which bedevil legislation, increase the depression, unsettle business and endanger our credit at home and abroad."

HITS SALES TAX FOES

He assailed those who opposing the sales tax would lead the working man to believe that his condition in life can be bettered by the slogan, 'soak the rich,' Smith said.

"That phrase means 'soak capital,' and everyone knows you cannot soak capital without soaking labor at the same time."

Smith vigorously opposed a cash bonus payment to veterans. He advocated defeat of the President's plan to relieve unemployment through funds of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but urged Congress to give Hoover "a free hand to provide aid for productive public works of states and municipalities."

ANOTHER CHAIR TEST — By Quin Hall

4 STATES NAME DELEGATES

Associated Press.

Selection of delegates to the national conventions proceeded today in four states, New Jersey alone of them making its choices by the primary method.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who yesterday won Kansas' 20 delegates was expected to receive Montana's eight and New Mexico's six Democratic votes today. Connecticut's Democratic delegation of 16 appeared due to be instructed for Alfred E. Smith but, unbound by the unit rule, was likely to contain some votes for Roosevelt. Definitely pro-Smith the New Jersey delegation of 32 was to be named without instruction.

President Hoover stood to receive 35 unpledged New Jersey votes and 11 from Montana, only Republican selections of the day. In both parties the Jersey primary appeared in for a record light vote there being no contests of importance.

Blawnox Burglars Take Telephone, $12

JAP ARMY GIVES ULTIMATUM

healing a threatened breach within the party ranks. Elders of the organization persuaded Takejiro Tokonami, railway minister, to abandon his candidacy.

SERVE FLAT NOTICE

The army leaders served flat notice they would refuse to support any cabinet formed on political party lines. They demanded a national cabinet. Gen. Mazaki, vice chief of the army general staff, visited former War Minister Gen. Sadao Arakin and informed him that the army would refuse to recommend any officers as war minister in the new cabinet if it were formed on party lines.

The crisis confronting the country, he said, demanded that politics be left aside and a "truly national" government be set up.

The constitution requires that the minister of war be a general and consequently the army is able to prevent the formation of any ministry of which it disapproves.

NAVY MUTINY FALSE

Reports circulated yesterday that the navy had decided to mutiny, proved entirely groundless on the basis of an official checkup. All naval bases were found to be quiet. Admiral Mitsea Osumi, minister of the navy in the Inukai cabinet, issued an order declaring "all naval personnel must observe the utmost caution to prevent a disturbance of the public mind."

Army headquarters announced that 11 cadets who surrendered to the military police Sunday night would soon be tried by a courtmartial and dealt with according to military discipline.

Beyond admitting that the perpetrators of the week-end terrorism were 11 cadets and six naval ensigns, the authorities kept the identities of the young men secret.

The Tokio, Osaka, Nagoya and Kobe stock exchanges remained closed although the rice and silk markets resumed trading. The price trend was downward.

DECISION IN ABEYANCE

The final decision on the new cabinet rested in abeyance, however, pending the arrival of Prince Saionji, the patriarchal last of the elder statesmen, who is expected to arrive from his Okitsu villa tomorrow to advise the Emperor about the next cabinet, as is the custom.

Gen. Araki is expected to urge that the old prince recommend a super-party government. Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, vice president of the privy council, has been most often mentioned as likely to head such a cabinet.

The police disclosed today that the 17 arrested as the perpetrators of Sunday's outrages were connected with the "Blood Brotherhood," to which also belonged the slayers of Baron Takuma Dan and former Finance Minister Junnosuke Inouye.

Last week, they said, the Buddhist priest Niasho Inouye, leader of the "Brotherhood," who is now in prison, directed suspicion against the 17 youths as a result of which, it was understood, the authorities were about to arrest them.

The youths learned of the impending danger, police said, and decided to act before they were arrested.

MOORE BEATEN IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 17.—A recount of ballots cast in the First Legislative District of Washington County today named T. B. H. Brownlee, Independent, the victor by nine votes for the Republican nomination in his battle with D. Glenn Moore, incumbent, backed by the regular organization. The official recount gave Brownlee 4,849 and Moore 4,840.

The unofficial count credited Moore with a plurality of 213. An error was discovered by the return board which greatly reduced Moore's lead, and when the ballot box from the Third District, Seventh Ward, of Washington, was opened and the vote recounted, Brownlee swung into the lead.

SENATE BEATS PLAN FOR 1922 TAX RATES

Move to Restore Old Levy Defeated; Showdown on Legalizing of Beer Near

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The non-partisan billion dollar tax bill withstood another attack this afternoon when the Senate defeated the Connally amendment seeking to restore the 1922 income tax rates.

Having refused to reimpose war-time income taxes the Senate also declined to boost the new rates to the level of just after the war. The Connally amendment would have imposed 4 and 8 per cent normal rates with surtaxes up to 55 per cent on incomes in excess of $1,000,000. The new Senate rates are 3, 6 and 9 per cent with surtaxes up to 45 per cent.

The vote was 31 to 48 against the amendment.

BEER ISSUE NEAR

Meanwhile the Senate today neared a showdown on the question of legalizing 4 per cent beer.

The proposal of Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, to legalize beer, thus making it taxable at $6 a barrel, would bring in $375,000,000 a year revenue as a substitute for numerous other taxes. He specifically suggested a reduction in income taxes to the House rates, a slash in automobile and lubricating oil levies, and complete elimination of the postal rate increase, the amusement, radio, phonograph and communication taxes.

FIGHT FOR RATES

The coalition led by Senators Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, and Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, was seeking to retain the committee rates unchanged. A comparison of the different rates follows:

| | Present Law | House Bill | Senate Bill |
|---|---|---|---|
| Normal rates | 1½ & 3 | 4 & 8 | 3, 6 & 9 |
| Surtaxes | 1½ to 20 | 1½ to 55 | 3 to 45 |

In each case the lowest normal rate applies to the first $4,000, the second to the next $4,000 and the highest rate to all income in excess of $8,000. The present surtax begins at $10,000 and its maximum takes effect on incomes in excess of $100,000. The House bill made the surtax apply at $6,000 and the maximum would take effect at $100,000. The Senate maximum would take effect on incomes in excess of $1,000,000.

DOUMER SLAYER CONTEST LOST BLAMES SPIRIT BY DAVIDSON

PARIS, May 17.—(AP)—Dr. Paul Gorguloy, the man who assassinated President Paul Doumer, told an examining magistrate today that he was in a "kind of hypnotic sleep" when he committed the crime. He declared:

"A mystic force armed my hand. I had no reason whatever to murder M. Doumer. I was in a kind of hypnotic sleep."

Gorgulov informed Magistrate Fougery that he drank a bottle of cognac before going to the war veterans' charity exhibition, where he shot the president.

The prisoner asserted that while on his way from Monaco to Paris before the assassination, he "tried to ward off the evil spirit which constantly urged me on to murder." He went on:

"On my arrival in Paris I went to Notre Dame Cathedral and prayed to God to rid me of the spirit. I fought to the last against this obsession."

A. P. Davidson, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination for General Assembly in the Thirteenth District, today lost his appeal from the ruling of the County Commissioners, who refused to throw out the vote of the First District of Springdale. Judge James R. Macfarlane today dismissed Davidson's appeal.

The recount in the district gave Davidson an Independent 10 votes, and his Regular opponent, W. L. Brown, 182, the same as the unofficial report.

The court held:

"There is no question that the letter and spirit of the law was not observed but there was no charge of fraud and it appeared that the action of the election board was through ignorance."

The board had failed to detach the stubs from the ballots.

WALSH QUIZZES WADSWORTH ON SALOONS

Former N. Y. Senator Holds States Can Be Trusted; Trade Barbs Over Funds

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, closely questioned former Senator James W. Wadsworth, of New York, at a Senate hearing today as to the possibility of return of the saloon if the Eighteenth Amendment were repealed. The witness said he thought the states could be trusted to prevent restoration of "the old time saloon."

Wadsworth, who testified in favor of repeal several weeks ago, was called back before the committee at the request of Walsh, who is a prohibitionist.

QUIZZED ON FUNDS

The witness testified the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment is opposed to restoration of the old-time saloon.

Walsh also questioned Wadsworth in detail concerning his contention that a repeal amendment should be submitted to state conventions rather than legislatures.

Walsh suggested that in the case of conventions "the prospects are that an enormous amount of money would be spent on both sides of that campaign."

Wadsworth said he would not expect the amount would be "enormous."

$350,000 BUDGET

When Walsh questioned h to expenditures of the Assoc Against the Prohibition A ment, Wadsworth said its budg for this year is $350,000. Walsh suggested that the association would spend "considerable money" in a campaign for delegates to state conventions to vote on repeal and that the Anti-Saloon League would do likewise. Referring to the league he said:

"You know they have many wealthy backers."

Wadsworth, smiling, replied:

"I know they did."

Walsh said that those w hoped to manufacture liquor w have a "selfish interest," to v Wadsworth replied:

"Likewise the bootlegger. He's be interested in maintaining the present law."

LaGuardia Says U. S. Pays For Judges' 'Joy Rides'

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—A charge that federal judges use government expense accounts to "joy ride" across the country and take vacation in New York, was spread today upon the sober pages of the Congressional Record.

Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York, put the accusation there is presenting to the House yesterday a report from the Comptroller General giving names of 29 federal judges who had turned in expense accounts for trips to sit on the Southern New York District bench.

Some served but one day at a time, others up to 30. Two came all the way from California, others from as far as Wyoming, Colorado, Texas, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Kansas and Illinois. A few of the accounts ran up into the thousands, bringing the total charge for $10 a day subsistence and transportation to $27,025.

DENVER, May 17.—(AP)—Two of the federal judges named by Representative LaGuardia as having taken "joy rides" at government expense deny the charges.

J. Foster Symes, of Denver, branded the allegations of the New York Republican as "unqualifiedly false." T. Blake Kennedy, of Cheyenne, Wyo., explained why trips were made. He said:

"It is quite natural for judges in the more sparsely settled districts to be appointed as assistants in the more densely populated districts. So far as 'joyriding' is concerned I know nothing about it."

Supreme Court Protects Dry States From Repeal

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—States which wish to remain dry have ample power to do so regardless of the outcome of the drive to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and Volstead act, the Supreme Court has ruled in effect today.

This interpretation was placed by legal observers upon the decision handed down yesterday by Chief Justice Hughes in holding the constitutional clause against interference with interstate commerce is no protection to drug companies selling alcohol extracts in West Virginia.

The decision attracted wide attention among both dry and anti-dry leaders because the question of protection of dry states has been raised in all attacks on national prohibition.

In the West Virginia case the out-of-state drug companies were required to pay an unusually high license fee to sell preparations containing alcohol within the state.

The preparations, the drug companies said, were not beverages and could not be taken as beverages without producing ill effects. Nevertheless, the court construed existing laws to give the state broad authority to enforce its own constitutional prohibition.

The court pointed out that the act prohibiting shipment of liquor into dry states is still in effect and would remain effective regardless of the Eighteenth Amendment.

WILBUR VIEWS DEPRESSION AS MORE HELP THAN HARM

SEES BENEFIT TO CHILDREN OF NATION

Tells Social Workers Home Takes More Normal Place In Slump; Stand Disputed

By GENE MYERS
International News Service

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—The nation's children—those in their 'teens and the kiddies of a more tender age—will profit rather than suffer from prevailin geconomic conditions.

Dr Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, was on record with this assertion today. Delegates attending the fifty-ninth annual national conference of social workers, before whom Secretary Wilbur spoke, were decidedly not in unanimous agreement with the cabinet officer.

STAND FIRM ON VIEWS

Several women rushed to the platform to controvert the speaker. He stood firm. A symposium of his statement follows:

"With prosperity many parents unload responsibilities for their children on others—with adversity the home takes its more normal place.

"The reduced mortality rate for infants and for children does not harmonize with dire prophesies.

"Interest of thousands of keen, well-trained people in seeing our children are properly fed and cared for has given many children better and more suitable food than in past good times.

'WORTH THE PRICE'

He concluded:

"If this emergency teaches us there is no possible method of replacing the family and the home, that our economic and social scheme should include those factors that will do the most for the home, it will be worth the price.

"Home means so much. Yet it is a hideous hole for millions of children. Low prices favor the efforts to blot out slums and transitional areas."

How Experts Here View Wilbur Stand

Child welfare workers here today declared that Secretary Wilbur was partly right in his statement that depressions benefit children in that some children get proper nourishment from community funds, but it was pointed out that in other cases families were apt to give babies anything they have on the table.

Dr H J Benz, child welfare director, City Department of Public Health, said:

"We furnish milk to children under 2 years at 15 milk stations in the city. During the depression the demands have been very heavy, indicating that in cases brought to our attention, children have benefited to some extent.

"For children over 2 years, a program of feeding is carried on under the public school system. This, too, would indicate that depressions benefit children. It's much cheaper to feed a child than to feed an adult and cases brought to our attention certainly do mean that the children are being helped."

HARM TO BABIES SEEN

Dr. Amelia A. Dranga, Pittsburgh Ice and Milk Association medical supervisor, said:

"Babies do not get the proper food during times of depression. The family is apt to give the baby anything it has on the table; things that are not digestible and things that are not proper.

"Children living during this depression will suffer rickets and other child diseases after their second year unless they can get the food they need—food a lot of them are not getting now."

Secretary Wilbur is right, said Dr. William Howard Hay, medical director of the Sun-Diet Sanatorium, of East Aurora, who is lecturing in Kaufmann's auditorium today, tomorrow and Thursday. He cited the case of Denmark during the World War. Although a non-combatant, Denmark compelled to depend on her resources, was rationed, and decided against the more expensive method of raising animals for food in favor of using the unrefined foods for the people. While food was limited in variety, he said, it was ample, its refinement was forbidden and as a consequence Denmark has set up a health record that never has been equaled and the death rate from degenerative diseases is the lowest ever known.

LAUDS CHEAP DIET

Damaged health for many children in America will probably result from the present economic situation, Dr. Hay says, but as a whole children will benefit through the absence of the refined sweets and starches that careless and indulgent parents formerly permitted them to have. Whether they will benefit by closer acquaintance with their parents depends on the intelligence of the parents, Dr. Hay declared.

Incidentally, Dr. Hay remarked that adequate and healthful meals can easily be served for 15 and 20 cents a day. Such meals would consist of whole, unrefined grains prepared as bread or cooked cereals, baked potatoes, plain vegetable soups and, in the absence of milk, the less expensive fruits, such as apples. Such a diet, he claims, will not only maintain health but will build up reserve.

Selling Out

ESTELLE TAYLOR

ESTELLE WEEPS AT HOME SALE

HOLLYWOOD, May 17.—(INS)—Estelle Taylor, lovely actress, cried a little today as she prepared to sell the house that Jack built—the beautiful $135,000 English home around which Jack planted roses every May 20—her birthday.

The home, which Jack gave her, was to be sold late today under the auctioneer's cold and unromantic hammer. Miss Taylor said wistfully:

"I won't be there. I'll be down at the little house I've leased at Malibu Beach. I think I'll find happiness in a little home."

Friends of Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight champion of the world, declared that he, too, would be absent when the auctioneer sells articles which Jack and Estelle owned together before divorce last September at Reno terminated their marriage.

STATE BUILDING PLANS HALTED

HARRISBURG, May 17—Orders have been issued to the Department of Property and Supplies by Attorney General Schnader, it was learned today, withholding the awarding of pending contracts for construction at state-owned institutions. The action was taken to ascertain the amount of money available in the general fund.

Recently Auditor General Charles A. Waters requested a formal opinion on the payment of appropriations to the various institutions in view of the Supreme Court's opinion holding valid the Talbot act which appropriated $10,000,000 to the counties for poor relief.

At the time of the special session late last year Gov. Pinchot declared that the General Assembly made an attempt to pass unemployment relief but failed to provide the necessary revenue to carry out the program. As a result of the attorney general's ruling approximately $6,000,000, in construction will be tied up. Work which already had been started will be continued, but on projects where awards have been made actual start of construction will be deferred until the fiscal status of the Commonwealth is definitely determined.

M. E. ASSEMBLY HOLDS SECOND DRY RALLY

Prohibition Dominates Conference; Election of Magee as Bishop Likely

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 17.—(AP.)—Prohibition again bulked large in the program of the Methodist general conference today with another rally arranged for the renewed declaration that Methodism will countenance no repeal referenda not in accord with present constitutional law.

The temperance and prohibition rally, the second in two days, and the continuation of the balloting for two bishops of the church were the main events in the day's conference program.

Dr. J. Ralph Magee, of Seattle, Wash., was only 39 votes short of the two-thirds majority necessary for election in the sixth ballot cast today. The general tendency among the delegates was to concede his election on one of the next two ballots.

DR. DAY THIRD

Dr. Joseph M. Gray, of Detroit, gained slightly, with a total of 332 votes. The deadlock between Dr. Gray and Dr. Lewis Hartman, of Boston, with 224 votes, appeared broken.

Supplanting Hartman in third place was Dr. Albert E. Day, of Pittsburgh, who received 254 votes.

The conference held its first strictly prohibition rally last night when Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, assured his audience that "prohibition is still holding its own on Capitol Hill."

CHURCH IN POLITICS

He declared that Methodism had neither the desire or inclination "to dabble in politics." The only way to get the church into politics, he added, "is to make either party assault prohibition, its integrity or its desirability in its platform, or put up a wet candidate to administer it."

Mayor Walker's beer parade drew his fire as the demonstration of "the loose and lawless elements of his misgoverned municipality."

A message from Henry Ford reindorsing prohibition was read at last night's rally. Ford said in part:

"I give my unreserved support to the Eighteenth Amendment and the prohibition law because they provide the degree of control over liquor which is necessary for national sobriety."

PREDICTS UNION OF METHODISTS

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—(AP.)—Belief that the Methodist Episcopal and Methodist Protestant churches will be united by 1935, but that "Protestantism will never be a single, united body," was voiced today by Dr. J. C. Broomfield, president of the Methodist Protestant Church.

Dr. Broomfield's prediction was made in advance of the opening of the twenty-sixth quadrennial general conference of his church. The sessions will last 10 days.

He also predicted the conference would delay any merger plans until 1934 and that it would take a "bone dry" stand at prohibition.

MRS. FORTESCUE WELCOMED IN NEW YORK

Greeted by Relatives and Friends on Arrival Home After Ordeal in Hawaii

International News Service

NEW YORK, May 17.—Mrs. Granville Fortescue arrived in New York today, "back home" from the Hawaii "honor slaying" for which she was convicted with three others. Their sentences were commuted. She planned to remain in the city with friends and then go to Washington with her husband.

She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Lilian A. Ripley, and was met by her husband, Maj. Fortescue, her mother, Mrs. Charles Bell, and her younger daughter, Helene, 17.

GREETED BY THRONGS

As she threw her arms about her mother and kissed her, Helene said:

"Oh, mother, I'm so glad to see you."

Mrs. Fortescue said that her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas E. Massie, and his wife, would remain in California awaiting naval orders but expected a month's leave which they would spend at Lieut. Massie's home in Winchester, Ky.

More than 1,000 people were waiting at Grand Central Station to see Mrs. Fortescue and when the party left they were escorted by railroad detectives.

THANKFUL TO HEARST

Interviewed yesterday in Chicago, Mrs. Fortescue spoke with deep gratitude of the support accorded her family in this country during the months of tribulation. She said:

"We were amazed at the widespread public sentiment in our behalf. It was wonderful, and it did much for us. We were deeply grateful for the support given us by William Randolph Hearst and his newspapers.

"His attitude in this case was typical of his attitude always when there has been need for action. It did not surprise us. For my part I have felt for years that he was one of the tremendous forces in this country and now he has made that force felt in Hawaii."

There is a vital need for America to move swiftly to protect that which it now has in Hawaii, in the opinion of Mrs. Fortescue. She said:

"Unless the United States takes firm and quick steps to hold and preserve its property, Japan will control the islands within five years."

believe the murderers and the receivers of the money are the same.

Dr. Condon was to have attended the police lineup at headquarters in Manhattan today, but this was delayed.

WIDE HUNT PUSHED

Meanwhile, with police heartened by possession of definite leads, the hunt for the Lindbergh baby kidnap-murderers shot forward today with intensified vigor along a wide territory.

From Maine to the Bermudas, Coast Guard vessels today searched the seas for a known mackerel schooner identified by John Hughes Curtis, chief of the Norfolk (Va.) group of negotiators, as carrying the group of ransom seekers with whom he made contact.

Capt. Randolph Ridgeley, Jr., commander of the Coast Guard, New York district, said he was given definite orders to find a boat painted black, with a green and white cabin, a two-masted sloop rig, and an auxiliary power plant of a 275-horsepower engine.

SHIP REPORTED SEEN

The suspected ship with the supposed kidnapers and slayers of sunny-haired Charles Augustus Lindbergh aboard, was reported seen off this city as recently as two weeks ago, some time before the infant's body was found in a shallow grave four and a half miles from the Sourland Mountain estate near Hopewell, N. J., of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Dr. Condon spent many hours looking at rogues' gallery photographs in the Bronx and in Westchester County yesterday, hoping to identify the man to whom he tossed the ransom money over the graveyard wall, or his four companions whom he once met on a boat off Throgg's Neck, the Bronx. He made this cryptic remark:

"I am on an important mission. Things are getting hot."

POLICE HEADS AID

Police Commissioner Mulrooney, Chief Inspector O'Brien and Inspector Henry Bruckman, of the Bronx, took active hold of the New York angle of the investigation.

Condon's appearance at the lineup today was requested by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey state police.

It was Schwarzkopf's theory the perpetrators of the crime that rocked the world may seek to escape the tightening search for them by seeking a short commitment in jail on a minor offense.

Schwarzkopf also reported he asked executives of all states to check up on the record of all inmates incarcerated since the night of the kidnaping, March 1.

Moore Seeks Lindy O. K. On $50,000 Reward Plan

TRENTON, N. J., May 17.—(INS.)—Gov. A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, announced this afternoon that he will ask the State Legislature to offer a reward of $50,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers and murderers of the Lindbergh baby.

This step was decided upon yesterday at a conference of the authorities in charge of the investigation. At first it was planned to offer $100,000, but further consideration this morning prompted the Governor to reduce the offer to $50,000. Late this afternoon the Governor was to see Col. Lindbergh and ask him to waive his earlier objections to the offering of a reward.

If Lindbergh's consent is obtained Gov. Moore will address the State Legislature, which meets next Monday, with his proposition. It is confidently expected that unanimous approval will be granted by the members of that body.

Coast Guard Cutters Seek Kidnap Ship

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(INS.)—Coast Guard cutters were sweeping the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Norfolk today in a renewed search for the mystery vessel supposed to have carried the Lindbergh kidnapers.

All cutter, destroyer and patrol boat commanders had instructions to seize the ship and bring it to port. Its description was radioed to the Coast Guard craft.

Officials here said that if a vessel of the description actually exists it is almost certain to be captured by the Coast Guard provided it remains within 25 miles of the coast.

Two-Day Mass Meetings Open Here Tomorrow With Poling Leading Crusade

'Dry' Chairman Not Blaw Knox Official

C. H. Lehmann, who will preside at the mass meetings of the Allied Forces for Prohibition is not Chester H. Lehman secretary of the Blaw Knox Company.

In a news story published yesterday Mr. Chester Lehman's name was confused with that of another businessman. The Blaw Knox official states he is not connected in any way with any prohibition movement.

Encouraged by the response encountered in speaking tours of more than 475 cities they say, speakers for the Allied Forces for Prohibition will arrive here tomorrow to open a two-day series of mass meetings as part of a nation-wide effort they are making to create a sentiment for the Eighteenth Amendment.

The first [illegible] include Dr. [illegible] A. Poling, chairman of the Allied Forces; Col. Raymond Robins, Miss Norma C. Brown, Rabbi [illegible] Harold Singer, who scheduled to speak at the [illegible] sessions; Oliver W. Stewart and Dr. Ira Landrith, [illegible] the [illegible] speakers for the meetings to arrive Thursday morning.

Members of the various subcommittees appointed [illegible] meetings were busy today completing their preparations. Meanwhile the following message arrived from Dr. Poling:

"I am looking for splendid meetings in Pittsburgh. We realize that not all the people are on our side in this fight and we want to discuss it fairly and dispassionately, without personal attacks on anyone."

Mass meetings will be held each afternoon and evening at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. at the Soldiers' Memorial Auditorium. All meetings are scheduled for daylight saving time.

In addition to the regular mass meetings there will be a luncheon for men at which Dr. Poling will be the speaker to be held at William Penn Hotel, at 12:15 p. m. Thursday. Dr. Poling will also address a women's luncheon at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow at Schenley Hotel.

At a youth banquet to be held at the First Baptist Church at 5:45 tomorrow night, Mr. Ropp and Mr. Singer will be the speakers. Mr. Ropp is chairman of Allied Youth, a young people's organization sponsored by the Allied Forces, and Mr. Singer is executive counsellor.

Return of Prosperity Depends Upon Steady Jobs for U. S. Workers

WE HAVE wasted in these past two and a half years [illegible] most important man in the United States [illegible] WORKING MAN.

The man who has a job and a steady income from wages [illegible].

The man who feels that he is necessary in his place and that his immediate future is secure.

Whether he wears a work shirt or a white collar, whether he works in a factory or on a farm, in an office or in a store, this man is the foundation of whatever prosperity we enjoy.

Multiply him by millions and we have a happy and prosperous country.

Throw millions of him out of work or reduce his income to the bare subsistence point and our prosperity vanishes. Our wealth shrinks to nothing. Gold and silver, stocks and bonds become pathetic playthings. We are reduced to poverty.

A FEW years ago thoughtless men who were dazzled by the [illegible] pretensions of industrial and financial leaders underrated the importance of the WORKINGMAN. They looked upon him as if he had no right to either his pride or his wage and as if he held his job as a favor from his employer.

Now everybody knows better. Now we know that the only way to restore normal well being to this nation is to put men back into JOBS again. And that the only thing that WILL reconstruct our prosperity is the creation of JOBS.

We cannot wave a wand and accomplish this. We must pay for it as we are accustomed to pay for all good and useful things. We paid for distressful war and its miserable by-products. We pay for peace and prosperity.

HOW CAN we do that? By issuing, for our own advantage, a $5,000,000,000 federal prosperity loan for public construction—to give JOBS BACK TO THE WORKING MEN of this country.

We confer no favor on men when we give them jobs. Now we know that when men are working, the stability of our nation is assured. We have lost the stability for a while, and we can recover it only by creating WORK.

Congress is moving slowly toward an understanding of that truth. Give the Senators and Representatives whom YOU know a mighty shove toward action by informing them emphatically that you wish THEM to vote for the federal prosperity loan. They'll do it when they know that's what you want.

At Times Hubby Is to Blame For Wife's Mistakes

Would you forgive a wife who had betrayed you?

Would you believe her when she said she was sorry and would never do it again?

Or would you put her down as just a bad egg and throw her out?

That's the problem that is torturing Joe just now. Once things were serene and happy in his home. The little woman met him every night at the door with a smile, and though he didn't say much about it he trusted her, loved her.

Then, one bitter day, he found out—found out that she had outraged his trust, trampled on his love, and—

Now, what'll he do?

Dear Miss Martin:

I am writing to ask you what you would do if you were in my place. I know that you have helped others, and I can't think of anyone else to tell my trouble to.

It is this way. I married a fine girl 13 years ago, after my first wife died and I had been a widower for three years. I had a baby girl 14 months old when my wife died. I left her with my sister-in-law until she was 12, then we took her again when my sister-in-law died. And my wife was awfully good to her.

We have three children, she and I, besides this little girl. The boy is 11, the next one is 9 and the baby is 6. She has kept them beautifully and kept house beautifully too. We were very fond of one another, and things seemed to be going along fine until last June, when a married man 19 years older than my wife began making advances to her.

WANTS TO BE FORGIVEN

Now she has made a mistake.

Since then she has gotten on knees to me, with her hand on the Bible, and sworn that she will never, never do such a thing again if I will just forgive her. She has waited on me hand and foot ever since it happened, two months ago.

Would you forgive her if you were in my place? Or wouldn't you? Do you think I can ever trust her again? Please tell me, for I don't know what to decide. We were always happy, I thought, until this came into our lives, but I just don't know. Can we ever be happy again? Shall I forget it all, or shall I take steps to get rid of her? JOE.

ROMANCE SHUT OUT

Shall you forgive her? Yes, Joe, I think you should.

I am not defending her. She made a bad misstep. She betrayed your love. Yet—

Are you sure you weren't a little to blame yourself? Are you sure that you didn't get so you just took her for granted, and shut all fun and romance out of your lives? Are you sure that you weren't so absorbed in yourself and your work that you let your life together become stodgy?

You see, once your marriage was new, thrilling, stimulating—an adventure. But you let that thrill, that adventure die. And because she was human, her heart was hungry. Then the other man came. He adored her. He told her she was sweet, exciting. He made her feel alive again; made her feel that her story wasn't over—and tragedy happened.

So now I'm telling you, not only forgive her, but ask her to forgive you, too.

Make a new beginning. Love her. Realize that she has suffered, too. And stop throwing her mistake up to her. Stop expecting her to "wait on you hand and foot." Put some joy and fun in her life. Make her glad she is married to you—and you can find happiness again.

Two men got into the elevator. "Who do you think I ran into today?" said one. He mentioned a woman's name. "She looked like a million dollars!"

"You don't say so!" said the other. "She never married, did she?"

"No! Funny, isn't it? Why, she could have married a dozen—"

They left the car.

I couldn't help considering this snatch of conversation.

They were prosperous, middle-aged and settled in life, one could see. As they remembered her from long ago she must not be so young.

Whatever her success in business or professional life, it did not impress them so much as the fact that she is not married!

Who was she?

Another popular girl growing old—alone? Many do.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Don't Neglect Influenza! It May Cause Graver Ills

To keep in good health and ward off attacks of grippe we must follow two cardinal rules. The first one is to keep the general health up to par by proper food, good elimination and plenty of fresh air. The second is to avoid the society of those who cough and sneeze.

Dr. Copeland

Influenza, commonly called "grip" from the French term "La Grippe," was little known by this generation until the world-wide epidemic of 1918, yet this disease was recognized as early as the tenth century and originated in Eastern Europe and Western Asia. In 1918 it spread along the various lines of travel, carrying sickness and death through all of Europe, Great Britain and North America.

The influenza germ or bacillus enters the system through the air passages, and its effects soon spread to other tissues of the body. Strangely enough, the great danger in the disease is the power of the germ to break down bodily defense.

We know all the familiar symptoms of influenza. They include chilliness, headache, aching limbs, nasal congestion and often bronchitis. Soon muscular weakness and mental depression follow.

Fortunately, influenza is a disease of short duration. Under proper care and rest it lasts usually but a week. If all goes well the symptoms depart after a few days, leaving the patient in a run-down, miserable state.

Not infrequently, in severe cases of influenza, pneumonia develops. There may be some infection of the sinuses or ears, or the heart muscles may become weakened. For this reason the patient should remain indoors for at least a week after the fever has subsided.

Aside from the ordinary type of grip there is another form known as abdominal grip. This form is sometimes difficult to recognize, as it resembles an attack of stomach and bowel trouble.

The treatment of grip is simple. The patient should have complete rest in bed during the period of the fever, plenty of fresh air, but no drafts, and a liberal diet of simple and easily digested foods.

Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

He Called Himself a Player

The hand shown was misplayed by a man who considered himself a good player.

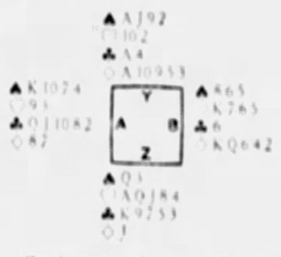
After B had shifted A's opening bid of 1-Diamond into 2-Clubs, A jumped into 3-No Trumps. As game could have been made by following a most elementary rule, we will not comment upon the biddins, the mistake in play will be sufficient to condemn.

The opening lead was the Q of diamonds. A won the trick and led one of his clubs, as his best chance for going game. There were held against him five clubs, including the Q-J-10, which would win at least one trick, even in case neither adversary held more than three of that suit. What A should have done was to let Y's J win the first trick, hoping that the A-K in dummy would drop all opposing clubs when next led, giving dummy five tricks. These five tricks plus two diamond tricks and two heart tricks would yield the nine tricks required for game. After that Y-Z could have their two diamond tricks and two other tricks—including their one club trick.

Instead of the above rational procedure, B-K captured Y's Q and the Ace was led followed by a small club that Z won. Of course, Z led back a diamond and that suit was cleared for the adversaries. A attempted to enter dummy by means of its spades. He led his Q but Z let the trick pass. Next the 8 was lead and covered with Y's 9. Z won the trick; his partner won two diamond tricks, giving A-B four tricks to date, with another spade trick later on, defeating the contract by one trick.

It is a very common expedient to pass one or more tricks deliberately allowing opponents to win those first tricks, hoping thereby to establish the remainder of the suit for future tricks. No real player could fail to go game on the hand.

The late Ernest Bergholt presented the problem hand given below, with comments as affording solvers something to think about.



Z plays the hand at hearts. The opening lead is the Q of clubs. How can a small slam be made against any subsequent play of A-B?

The solution will appear tomorrow.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Question of Names

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Does one eat or drink soup in the ordinary soup plate with the regular soup spoon? The soup I refer to is not a bouillon, but say a noodle soup. The noodles, of course, have to be eaten, but the liquid soup in itself is what?

S. L.

The word eat is customarily used when we speak of soup. And especially is this true when we speak of soup served in the conventional soup plate. We may, with propriety, speak of drinking our bouillon from the small two-handled bouillon cup, but even in this case the word eat is usually used.

The Personal Touch

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In acknowledging gifts of flowers for the funeral of a relative, is it proper to address the envelopes with a typewriter, or must this be in handwriting?

F.

It would be more appropriate to write in handwriting the note and the envelope of these acknowledgements.

That there are more wild snakes in the metropolitan section of New York than in any other area of its size in the world. (You're telling me a Broadway columnist?)

That the sun wears itself down 125,000 tons every 24 hours. (And Kate Smith is trying to get the diet.)

That in 1924 the roulette casino at Monte Carlo registered six consecutive wins for the number 34. The odds against such a possibility are over 9,000,000,000 to 1. (This bet is known as the "Odds of Yawits" and gets its name from the fact that he will lay it any old time at all.)

That there are 80 firms in the U. S. which are over 100 years old and have remained in the male line of the families of the founders.

That during 1931 one male auto driver was involved in a fatal accident for every 726 male drivers licensed, while only one woman was involved for every 3,558 females licensed. (But what are the statastics on back-seat drivers?)

That there is a speak on East 47th St. famous for its Chinese chow mein, its French bartender, its German waiter, its Italian porter, its American proprietor and his Irish wife. (I'll bet they have a Scotch terrier.)

That doctors have repeatedly warned the American public that it is safer to kiss your dog than it is to kiss a woman, because there are approximately 100,000 germs exchanged in the human kiss. (Here, boy, post this paragraph in the kitchen where the ice-man can see it, the dog.)

That a baby cannot shed tears until it is at least three months old. (So if your kid is under 90 days of age and is wetting his eyes with tears, take him aside and explain the mistake he's making.)

That women spend 85 cents of every dollar in this country, and that even the purchase of 61 per cent of men's haberdashers is influenced by women. (Don't I know?)

That the longest night in history was when the calendar was changed in England. People went to bed on the 2nd of Sept. 1752 and awoke on the 14th. (One night's sleep like that would make a new man of me.)

'Pinafore' Sails Into Port, Little Buttercup At the Helm

By GEORGE SEIBEL

It was a great night for Sir Arthur Sullivan, whose flowing melodies wove a spell about jazz jaded ears. It was a great night for W. S. Gilbert, whose coherent libretto pleased an audience tired of jig saw plots. It was a great night for Fay Templeton, who came home to her own people in the role of Little Buttercup, in which she first won fame, and showed them she can still sing it, and they showed her that they still adore her.

Mr. Seibel

Will that Gilbert and Sullivan gem, H. M. S. Pinafore, ever lose its luster? The company at the Nixon with Thel Pennington singing Josephine's an excellent vocal aggregation and if they vamped over the comedy it would sound like Italian romantic opera. They did not stress the comedy as was done in De Wolf Hopper days and at times it all looks on the glamor of Italian opera. Maybe Sir Arthur wasn't quite sure what he was going to turn out.

Frank Moulan as the Right Hon. Sir Joseph Porter began by giving his autobiography in a dignified manner befitting an admiral of the Queen's Navee, while Allen Waterous was a gallant Captain Corcoran tonsorially and vocally without ever descending from the lofty pinnacle (or is it the barnacle?) of British seamanship.

DEAR LITTLE BUTTERCUP

As for Fay Templeton, she sang well and put much comedy spirit into her acting. The applause she received with the ovation at the end was not merely a tribute to a friend and townswoman, but the appreciation of the audience for the spirit and quality of her performance. She was dear little Buttercup, but she also sang dear little Buttercup and acted dear little Buttercup. Her Baby Farming song at the close and her duet with Capt. Corcoran were both very well done.

Howard Marsh was Ralph Rackstraw with just a dash of light humor which Miss Pennington also put into her Josephine. William Danforth made Dick Deadeye grimly grotesque and Herbert Waterous as Bill Bobstay put bass notes of profound conviction into "He Is an Englishman." Altogether it was a fine singing cast backed up by a splendid chorus of able seamen and flanked with a lovely crew of sisters and cousins and aunts.

"TRIAL BY JURY"

As a curtain-raiser "Trial by Jury" was sung—the earliest of Gilbert and Sullivan's joint productions which has not been heard here since many years ago when it was given in the old Duquesne Theater.

It was an amusing travesty on a breach-of-promise suit with the lovely plaintiff sung by Theo Pennington vamping the Learned Judge otherwise Frank Moulan as well as the impartial but susceptible jury. William Danforth was the usher or tipstave and maintained order in the court at any cost. Trial by Jury is a most amusing trifle with some very good Arthurian melody tinkling through its gas Gilbertian comedy.

Milton Aborn is rendering the theater a real service by his revival of these Gilbert and Sullivan operettas in such fine style for they are a joy to intelligent listeners and he makes them doubly so by rich productions and a singing cast that would acquit itself well in the airier Italian melodramas.

Five Year Plan Of Soviets In Film

By MILDRED FILLMORE

That is a great picture the Avenue Cinema is showing this week, called "The Five Year Plan" and recording the progress of Russia's sensational industrial program. It is a picture for students of sociology, of world conditions, of capital and labor tomorrow. In this picture capital seems to have disappeared—there isn't even a white collar on view until a chorus of Ukrainians makes its bow in a cultural supplement.

Labor is everywhere in evidence, building a new world in which its perspiration does not enrich exploiters. Vast factories, irrigation plants, collective farms, model homes for workers, rise out of the slippes and above the slums. The lecture that accompanies the picture is in English; there is no attempt at propaganda and none is needed. The picture speaks for itself with its revelation of vast progress—and its thousands of eager, earnest, contented and happy faces.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

There will be no change in the Gilbert and Sullivan bill that opened in the Nixon last night until Friday, when "The Mikado" will be presented with Hui Koyke, Japanese prima donna, as Yum Yum and Vera Ross as Katisha, the role in which Mme. Schumann-Heink appeared here in the same operetta. "The Mikado" also will be sung at the Saturday matinee and the closing bill Saturday night will be "Pirates of Penzance."

Baltimore, which recently voted its Blue Law into the discard, looks to see all movie theaters remain open throughout the summer as one result. . . . Adolphe Manjou has been signed to play a sleuth in three detective mystery stories. . . . Constance Bennett's next picture to go into production, with Neil Hamilton as male lead, will be "Two Against the World." . . . Dorothy Hall, Bradford girl who is a current hit in New York in "Child of Manhattan," will appear in a screen version of this Preston Sturges comedy. . . . Jean Arthur, once of the films, has the leading feminine role in the stage production, "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," which features Claude Rains, former Theater Guilder. . . . George Kaufman, that old collaborator, will have a new one in Edna Ferber, the novelist in turning out "Dinner for Eight," a play announced for fall production. . . . Warren Williams will have three featured dames opposite him in his next picture, "Three on a Match," the trio being Joan Blondell, Beete Davis and Mary Brian. . . . Lewis Stone has been added to the cast of the celluloid "Strange Interlude," for which Norma Shearer and Clark Gable already have been enrolled.

In "Revolt," which will star Douglas Fairbanks, Ann Dvorak will be the leading femme.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

IN A middle western city some seven months ago, a local gambler was kidnaped by two men who had been in the racket for the last two years. The gambler was taken in the customary way. The two men walked into an office building, stepped up to the gambler, notified him very quietly that two guns were pointed right at him through their coats and advised him to walk with them without raising any commotion.

The gambler did exactly as they all do. He walked. If you had seen the three of them walking down the street, you would have considered them just three gentlemen of leisure, out for a friendly stroll. They reached a machine, stepped in—and were driven away.

The kidnapers, as is frequently the case under modern methods, hadn't the slightest intention of harming their victim. They might bind him and gag him, and make him highly uncomfortable. But as far as murdering him unless he or his friends came across well, that was something on which they didn't plan. Threats usually sufficed in fine style.

As soon as they had him in the house in which he was to be held, the kidnapers gave him the dope straight from the shoulder.

"You've got dough," they told him. "We wouldn't have taken you if you hadn't. And the quicker you come across, the better off you'll be.

"If you want to notify any of your friends, just come across with the names. We'll see that they get the news and if they want to put up for you, we'll arrange the meet.

"We want $50,000 for you—and that's what we're gonna get. It's up to you to figure the best way to get it. And if you try to phony us around you're goin' out of here horizontal."

The gambler was no fool. He knew exactly the type of spot he was in. And, while he was fairly certain that he wouldn't be killed, he understood full well that the situation was no joke.

So he, too, avoided the preliminaries and laid his cards on the table.

"Fellows," he said, "you got me, and there's nothin' I can do about it. But I swear on my life that I haven't got 30 grees, and I don't know where I could raise that much. I got $12,000 in the bank, and I haven't got another cent in the world. Take $10,000 and let me out of here."

"Nothin' doin'," replied one of the kidnapers shortly. "You heard our price, and that stands. After you've been around a while you'll think of some way of gettin' it. They always do."

On the third day they bound the gambler and placed him on the floor in a none-too-gentle fashion. On the fourth day they grew a little rougher. On the fifth day they began to kick him around. And on the sixth day he made them a very definite proposition.

"Boys," he muttered weakly, "please do as I ask. I'll give you a note to my brother and he'll raise $10,000 in cash. He doesn't love me any too much, but he'll do it because he knows that I'll draw my dough out of my bank and give to back to him pronto.

"Then, when I'm out I'll begin to dig. I'll have another $10,000 for you fellows one week after you let me go, and I'll deliver it to you in any spot you pick. That's the best I can do, boys. I swear I'll make good on my part of the bargain. And no matter how you torture me I can't do any better."

His words convinced the kidnapers. A short time later the deal was arranged as the gambler had outlined it. His brother came across with the $10,000. And just before the victim was turned loose the kidnapers gave him a few final words of wisdom.

"You'll get a phone call one week from today," they told him. "And we don't have to give you no warnings about keepin' your trap shut. If you talk to anybody about this, you know your end."

The victim nodded.

"I'm no fool, boys. Nobody will ever know. I value my life." . . .

Exactly one week later, one of the kidnapers was on the phone.

"Well, chump," he said. "Are you set with that dough?"

The gambler was trembling violently.

"Listen," he retorted nervously. "I've done everything I possibly could. But times are too tough. You'll have to give me more time, because I couldn't raise the dough."

The other man's voice fairly blasted through the phone.

"What's that?" he roared. "Didn't you swear on your life that you'd have it?"

"Y-y-yes," stammered the gambler, "but——"

"There ain't no buts," shouted the kidnaper. "Ain't you got no principle?" . .

"DEAR MARK," writes S. C. "Even if you have heard it, it's a swell story. Out West, a certain Governor was in a hurry to get to a banquet, where he was scheduled to deliver the chief address of the evening. He told his chauffeur to step on it and they were going like the devil when the car landed at a grade crossing as the watchman was preparing to lower the gates. The Governor, seeing that the train was not yet in sight, poked his head out of the machine.

"'Hey, there,' he cried. 'Wait a minute. I'm in a hurry to cross the tracks.'

"'Sorry, mister,' replied the watchman. 'I've got to signal and I must lower the gates. Can't play any favorites, you know.'

"'Say,' said the Governor indignantly, 'do you know who I am? I'm the Governor of this state.'

"'Glad to meet you, Governor,' retorted the watchman. 'I'm Mr. Sweeney, of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.'" . . .

"DID YOU hear what happened out on the Metro lot the other day?" inquires Al Schwartz. "It seems that Jimmy Durante sneezed—and he blew Jackie Cooper right off the set!" . . .

TALK ABOUT your depression stories! Here's a honey:

There's a clothing salesman who steps out of the Grand Central Station each morning and takes over to his store a few blocks away. His store, incidentally, is part of a chain outfit that sells just about the cheapest men's clothing in the city.

While he is being driven the very short distance, the salesman always puts on the same act. He tells the driver he likes all the hackies and that he is in a position to do any of them a decided favor. If they will come to his store and ask for him he will see that they get the very finest garment at the very lowest price. He then hands over his card.

If a driver does happen to drop in the salesman, of course, can get him no reduction. He does, however, con the chauffeur into buying a suit before he leaves. And that, I suppose, is the main thing. Inasmuch as the taxi fare is but 30 cents, including the tip the salesman hands out, he is getting a potential customer at an extremely low price.

The other morning he climbed into a taxi in the usual spot. When he noticed that the driver was one he had employed before he climbed out again and hailed another cab. Because he undoubtedly figured it would be a waste of time to deliver his sales talk twice in the same spot! . . .

DEVICE 'CHUTES 4 FROM PLANE

SANTA ANA, Cal., May 17. (AP)—Four men were parachuted from an airplane yesterday in a demonstration of a method to release passengers from distressed ships. All landed safely and had cleared the ship in five seconds. Harry Trinity, inventor, calculated.

In a cabin monoplane 4,000 feet over the airport here, the pilot pulled a lever. Two of the passengers were swung outward through the doors in the fuselage and scudded off into the air while parachutes blossomed above their heads.

The pilot pulled a second lever. The other two passengers swung through two more doors and the parachutes automatically took them in tow. All four landed sitting on the same seats they occupied in the plane.

Sheraden Luncheon to Be Served Country Style With Members Wearing Housedresses

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The Sheraden Woman's Club is going "back to the farm" in planning for its annual luncheon this year. To begin with, each member will wear a housedress that is old enough to have seen two washings. A simple luncheon will be served by the social committee, the entire meal being placed on the table at once instead of being served in courses.

And the money which would ordinarily be expended for entertainment will be used for welfare work, and the drama committee will furnish the entertainment, putting on a program of stunts.

The luncheon is to be held at Sherodd Temple, May 27. Mrs. Ross Elliott is chairman of the drama committee and Mrs. J. G. Taylor, of the social committee.

* * *

The Brookside Woman's Club is closing the year's program with music today at the home of Mrs. F. W. Stolzenbach, with the retiring president, Mrs. William P. Allen, presiding. Guest artists for the afternoon are Charlotte Shallenberger, soprano; Helen Reed Herman, piano, and Helen Hunt Allen, violin.

Closing Season

The club choral, under the direction of Mrs. William Weiss, will sing two groups of songs, and Mrs. Stewart C. McFarland, accompanied at the piano by Juda D'Ayne, will read selections from her own poetry.

The club's new officers are: Mrs. E. Burt Nutt, president; Mrs. F. W. Stolzenbach, vice president; Mrs. John H. Snow, recording secretary; Mrs. Elmer T. Wible, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles H. Bayha, treasurer; Mrs. William P. Allen, non-official board member.

Mrs. Leslie N. Creighton, of the welfare committee, has reported Help-Family fund and $10 to the $180 given to the Bethel Volunteer Molleneur milk fund during the Soup Kitchen, $10 to the Family club year.

NEW MATERIALS AND NEW USES FOR THE OLD

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 17. — Probably never before has Paris turned out so many interesting materials in one season, nor so many interesting ways of using the good old familiar fabrics that have become classic. Tailored dresses are made of laces these days; evening dresses are of wool; coats of cotton. Rue de la Paix is outdoing itself this year in finding new styles in everyday materials.

* * *

ONE OF the pet methods for "dressing up" the simpler fabrics is to combine them with lots of white. It is, of course, a perennial Paris fashion, but this year finds it in a number of new disguises.

* * *

AT FIRST glance, no one would guess that Bruyere's street dress, in the sketch, was of jersey. Although made on tailored lines, the white embroidery on the shoulders completely changes the character of the frock. The yoke is entirely covered with this hand-drawn work — small daisies in white silk, with blue centers. The skirt is made in Bruyere's favorite manner, with an apex yoke which allows a bias cutting at the sides to give plenty of fulness at the hem.

POLITICS

Anti Dry Resolution Victim of Jealousy

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

Pennsylvania's Republican leaders are not certain at this time that President Hoover and national party leaders will be for direct repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment as a part of the party platform to be written at Chicago. Palpably, that was the reason some helped sidetrack Saturday the resolution of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, instructing the Pennsylvania member of the resolutions committee, Senator David A. Reed, to insist upon repeal.

Former Senator Horace Schantz, of Lehigh County, one of the most militant wets in the country, was author of the resolution to withhold consideration of Mackrell's proposal until the delegates meet at Chicago on the eve of the convention. Charles Dorrance, of Scranton, so vigorously wet that he assisted in the defeat of Francis Shunk Brown for the governorship in reprisal for Brown's refusal in the 1930 primary to repudiate prohibition, seconded Schantz.

The subsequent explanations were revealing. More than one wet Republican privately said he did not wish the Pennsylvania delegation to adopt now a position it might have to retire from in Chicago. That was tantamount to saying that, so far as they are concerned, this leading Republican state probably will do whatever the President wishes, even though that wish refrains from going as far as the state appeared to demand in its overwhelming vote for Senator James J. Davis.

Dorrance frankly approved the principle of the Mackrell resolution, but feared to put a gun to the administration's head. If Pennsylvania attempts to weasel on the subject, which in the view of Dorrance is by no means improbable, there will be fireworks in the Pennsylvania delegation at Chicago.

* * *

Local Political Tinge To Blockading Mackrell

There was, of course, some local political tinge to the blockading of Mackrell. Admitting that Senator Reed brought word from Washington of administration desires, he found fertile field for his request because there were some Pennsylvanians who were inclined to resent the manner in which Mackrell had stepped to the center of the picture.

The Pittsburgher contended that as campaign manager for Davis he had credentials to put forth his resolution without consulting any one, as he did not. But there were some prominent figures who felt that he had overstepped the unwritten rules, that he had not connived and negotiated and dickered, or consulted "the best minds."

It was interesting to watch the conduct of the Allegheny County delegates throughout the Philadelphia meeting. To a man they voted against Mackrell. On the morning of the caucus Allegheny delegates breakfasted with Walter A. Bonitz, a delegate from the Thirty-second Congressional District. Bonitz, during the campaign, made a wet declaration as unequivocal as that of Mackrell.

Bonitz and Mackrell have been political friends since the Malone mayoralty campaign, and were fellow-workers in the Brown gubernatorial campaign of 1930. But recently a coolness has sprung up, and Bonitz did his full share in lining up delegates to vote Mackrell down. It was Bonitz, according to gossip, who was responsible for Mackrell being named as Davis' campaign manager, which gave an added interest to his course of opposition at Philadelphia.

Playing along with Bonitz, rather than Mackrell, was Senator M. G. Leslie, leader of the faction with which Mackrell was always identified. Leslie and Bonitz are delegates from the same district.

* * *

No Sidestepping, Delegates Insist

The Allegheny county delegates insist there will be no sidestepping when they get to the convention. All but one of those who attended the breakfast conference in Philadelphia is understood to accept the local and state vote as a mandate. This is also understood to have been the view of Davis, who conferred with the delegates.

Senator Reed was invited to the breakfast, but did not attend. At the caucus later in the afternoon Reed sat in a front seat, apart from the district delegates, and made no apparent effort to mingle with them after the meeting was over. There were some inclined to resent the aloofness of the Senator, who will represent them in the meetings of the Resolutions Committee.

It is not apparent that Mackrell suffered any loss of prestige over the outcome of the caucus vote. He had taken his stand during the campaign, felt there was no need to temporize, and that sentiment was plain. He remained consistent, and whatever the verdict of Chicago, if the state finally demands action, it will be the Mackrell resolution which brings matters to a showdown.

Mine Union Chief Sees Prosperity in Job Loan

By PATRICK T. FAGAN

Many thoughtful and unselfish, and many intelligently selfish men and women have indorsed federal relief through the building of much-needed public improvements.

The thoughtful know that the millions of men in this country who are idle must have work; they know that these men and women who are idle, who are now facing destitution, are the same people who have assisted this nation in every crisis.

The intelligently selfish are those who know that the expenditure of $5,000,000,000 on necessary public improvements, being suggested at this time before Congress, would start the wheels going. They know, too, as you and I know, that this amount could not in any way harm the nation's structure, for the money placed in national circulation would move through the grocery store, the mill, the mine, the amusement enterprise, the garment store—and finally to the bank.

Certainly, for example, bankers of this United States would welcome $5,000,000,000 new home-made business—a business that would escape the dangers of foreign investment—a business that would mean buying power and industrial activity.

The laboring men of the United States must have such relief—the kind of relief they want, which is jobs. I certainly hope Congress passes the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan. It would be a life-saver. I can imagine no better way to start upwards.

V. F. W. Head Urges Prosperity Bonds

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 17.—Advocating speedy action by Congress on a construction program to be financed by a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan, Harold D. DeCoe, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, issued a statement yesterday favoring the prosperity loan.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 17.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The Senate slept on the tax bill over the week-end. But the birds that are going to have to pay it didn't sleep any. Some Senators say that no man should be allowed to earn over $75,000 a year. They forget that a man that earns that much or more works for a different kind of an employer from the one senators work for. Suppose you got $100,000 a year for working for a firm, and you spent two hundred billion of their money that you didn't have, and didn't know where you was going to get it, how long would you be working for that firm?

Yours, WILL.

FOREIGN WARS GROUP CITES JOB NEEDS

1,000,000 Idle in State Show Need for Prosperity Bonds to Speed Projects

Portraying the lot of 1,000,000 idle men and women facing distress in Pennsylvania, Jack Bingham, member of the Allegheny County executive committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, presented for adoption a resolution indorsing the $5,000,000,000 federal prosperity loan for needed public works.

The executive committee of the Veterans unanimously passed the resolution and sent it to members of Congress.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, It is estimated more than 8,000,000 wage earners are idle in the nation, over 1,000,000 in Pennsylvania and 190,000 in Allegheny County.

"Whereas, The distress of unemployment can be remedied only by the creation of payrolls.

"Whereas, A federal construction program of needed and well thought out public improvements on a large scale would allay the distress and meet the crisis caused by the exhaustion of local and state funds.

"Therefore, be it resolved, That Allegheny County executive committee, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Pittsburgh, Pa., hereby indorse a $5,000,000,000 federal prosperity loan, and humbly petitions the Congress of the United States to authorize such a loan for the construction of such public improvements."

Jobless Totals Grow, Relief Funds Decrease

That unemployment is increasing in Pennsylvania, while local and public funds are facing depletion, was indicated today by reports from welfare authorities and the state Department of Labor and Industry.

Dr. A. M. Northrup, Secretary of Labor and Industry, made public the unemployment statistics for March, which showed an increase of 1½ per cent over January.

The figures, considered conservative estimates, set the state unemployed at 1,037,000, an increase of 56,000 over January's total.

Allegheny County showed a parallel increase in unemployment, 1½ per cent over January's. The estimate of the Bureau of Business Research, University of Pittsburgh, for March, was approximately 190,000.

Meanwhile the Allegheny County Emergency Association heads agreed that all city and county relief would be exhausted by August 20, with the exception of the city bond issues and the ability of the County Poor Board to tax. They likewise stated that with the depletion of funds allocated to relief jobs in Clairton, Ben Avon and Kennedy Township, 797 men were discharged.

A number of organizations today plan to memorialize Congress to pass the $5,000,000,000 prosperity bond issue for necessary public works.

Widening of Street Planned in Dormont

Dormont Council will be asked at its next meeting to set back the building line on West Liberty avenue on future building projects. The request will be made by the Dormont Chamber of Commerce and was prompted by reports of the proposed widening of West Liberty avenue by the State Highway Commission.

POLICE, RESCUE CREW USING AN INHALATOR ON MAX FELDMAN, 45, MONOXIDE VICTIM

RESCUERS FAIL, GAS KILLS MAN

Police and mine rescue crews battled unsuccessfully for more than four hours today to save Max Feldman, 45, of 5248 Beeler street, a building contractor, from death by carbon monoxide. He was preparing to go to his mother-in-law's funeral.

He was found slumped over the steering wheel of his automobile by Richard Tooney, 5248 Beeler street, Carnegie Tech student, en route to school.

Tooney summoned police and rescue squads from the Bureau of Mines and the Mine Safety Appliances Company. Stretched out in Beelermont street, eight men worked over the victim, with a physician standing by, but although there were indications of life he failed to revive.

The family said Feldman had gone to the garage an hour earlier to get the car to take his wife to the funeral of her mother.

Program Tomorrow Marks Goodwill Day

The principal speaker will be Howard Y. Williams, World War hero. Mrs. Joseph Silberstein, general chairman of the celebration, will speak in behalf of local clubwomen.

Is Washington Peeved at Cut In Lobby Rates?

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We'll never believe that the Wickersham Committee had to go out to turn that report in.

If Steve Decatur had to make his famous toast all over again he would be right but the country would be wrong.

You can never make us think that Washington is sore at the lobbyists because the boys reduced the prices.

Now that the Republicans and Democrats agree on that billion dollar tax, what party do we have to join to get immunity?

Economy during the last six months of a Republican administration is too much like teaching an old dog new capers.

The only thing that kept that New York beer parade from being a total success was that all the marchers got home the same night.

We don't think that repeal will change the situation any. The only change will be that the raiders will be in uniforms.

PRIESTLY HELD ON FRAUD COUNTS

Aide, Co-Defendant in One Case, Posts $6,500 Bail; Osteopath Accuser

Walter Priestley piled one trouble on top of another in the county jail today.

Priestley, director of the "Charles Waulter Research Organization," with offices in the Grant Building, was served with a second warrant, which charged obtaining money under false pretense.

Philip Williams, Oakland real estate man, said he paid Priestley $500 on Priestley's promise to get him a job as an investigator.

FRAUD CHARGED

Priestley was arrested in his Mt. Lebanon home last night on information made by Dr. Frank L. Goehring, osteopath, who charged fraudulent conversion.

E. B. Somers, 21, Priestley's secretary, and a "director" of the "research organization," arrested Saturday night on a similar charge, was released in $6,500 bail yesterday.

They will be given hearings Thursday night before Justice of the Peace Milton B. Church, 2815 Brownsville road.

The arrest of the two followed investigation by the Pennsylvania Securities Commission, a division of the State Banking Department. Mark I. Walker, investigator in charge of the Pittsburgh office, said yesterday that numerous investments in Priestley's propositions had been reported to his department.

MANY ACTIVITIES

The department's investigation showed, Walker said, that in addition to operating a Castle Shannon dry cleaning plant, an agency by which he is alleged to have sold automobiles at a discount by collecting a first payment and failing to deliver the cars, and having the sales agency for a patented electric light globe, Priestley is also said to have claimed to represent a group of New York financiers interested in the coal business.

Priestley, the investigators say, claimed to have had connections with the Rockefellers and the Morgans. The investments, it is declared, were either to guarantee assistance in obtaining employment with the New York capitalists or to produce large returns. Investigators are seeking to determine what became of the money Priestley collected, which is believed, the investigators say, to aggregate approximately $100,000.

Palestine Scenes Shown In Raskin Exhibition

By PENELOPE REDD

Saul Raskin exhibits oil paintings and prints of Palestinian subjects at the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association, Bellefield avenue, through Thursday, May 19. Mr. Raskin convinces one of the continuity between the persons of Biblical times and their descendants of today against the unchanged natural background.

"Jerusalem at Night," "Tower of David," "Mother Rachael's Tomb" and "River Jordan," all seen by moonlight, are painted with poetic glamor rather than archeological gravity.

Miss Redd

Jerusalem is also shown by day in a drypoint; while Christian, Jewish and Moslem Jerusalem, with their respective places of worship, are recorded in lithographs. "The Wailing Wall" appears in various mediums. Perhaps the best is the colored etching with a group of devout figures, including one topped by a fez, Mr. Raskin said.

"The younger generation does not weep, but work."

He directed attention to the picture depicting the surge of activity attending the colonization of the younger Zionists.

The pictures of the "Ein Harod" communistic colony, where all share labor equally, was enlightening, but lacked the atmosphere that one finds in such character studies as "The Persian Jew" or "An Old Story," with three cronies indulging in an old wives' tale.

Saul Raskin has sought and has found a world of romantic reality in Palestine.

This collection, which is one of the finest in Pittsburgh, begins with the Columbian issue of 1893 of which there were 198 plates issued by the government of which Mr. Dickson has 197. Of the next issue, named the Trans-Mississippi, the government issued 149 plates, of which he has 140. # CITY VETERANS UNITE FOR JOB CAMPAIGN

House-to-House Canvass for Part Time Work Begins Under Legion Commander

A concerted campaign for the house-to-house part time work drive within the city limits, arranged last night at a meeting of post commanders of the American Legion in Fort Pitt Hotel, today was launched from new headquarters in the Grant Building.

While the majority of Legion posts in the county have been conducting their campaign several months, this will be the first concerted action within the city. Posts will work in co-operation with the 17 Welfare Community Councils centered in every district.

WELFARE COUNCIL AID

The co-operation was extended through Frank Chesterman, vice president and general manager of the Bell Telephone Company, an active leader in the community councils.

Robert K. Cochrane, Jr., county unemployed director for the Legion, announced A. B. Charles as secretary in charge of the new headquarters. All posts will be directed by Charles in the formulation of campaign plans and committee schedules.

Success of the drive in the county was cited through reports submitted at the meeting. Commander W. M. Boyle, of Oakdale Post, stated that employment for men and women since the opening of a drive in Oakdale in February netted $11,231 in wages. The money was earned in work provided by householders engaging workmen to make minor repairs and improvements to their properties. C. E. Reeves reported the Swissvale Post since April 5 has obtained $2,200 for workers.

RADIO APPEAL

The meeting was also addressed by John Beatty, director of Allegheny County Emergency Association, and Charles McGinnis, vice chairman of the legion drive in Pennsylvania. The state chairman, Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the drive and chairman of the board of the National Steel Company, will broadcast an appeal for citizens to aid the drive from station KDKA on Saturday at 3:45 p. m.

'ARMY' APPEAL SPURRED HERE

Reports from Philadelphia, where the Salvation Army drive has "gone over the top," have stirred local workers soliciting funds in the local drive of $112,500. Headquarters here have pointed out that the work in Pittsburgh is greater in proportion than that done by Philadelphia Salvationists.

The drive here has passed its first week and is scheduled to close May 23. More than 1,100 women, under the direction of Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, are conducting house-to-house canvasses throughout the county. A committee of men headed by Henry Russell Miller is making the appeal to industrial workers and business establishments.

MUSIC

Compinsky Trio
Y. M. & W. H. A.

For the third time within a year the Compinsky Trio has given good music at the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association, this time surpassing both previous performances.

Mr. Lissfelt

These two brothers and a sister are blending their playing more and more. In tone they sometimes try to emulate larger ensembles and to the detriment or many beautiful effects which music like the Tschaikowsky Trio provides. This is often the fault of the robust playing of the violinist, and frequently, too, of the pianist, who in her enthusiasm forgets how to play a good forte.

The opening Brahms Trio in E flat is the best they have ever played here. There was more repose, less constant drive to the rhythms and a very intimate feeling for the ensemble. As novelty they offered a Trio in C major of Caspar Cassado, a young Spaniard of tremendous talents. Vivid coloring, virile rhythms, smart interweaving of thematic materials and melodies that belong to his native country characterize the work. It has an excellent sense of form and there is a feeling that the composer has neve, lost the thread of his purpose.

As extra attraction the "Y" offers a concert by the Aiello Trio, Tuesday night, May 24. This concert is free to the public.

BUCS' SHUTOUT RECORD STILL STANDS

JOE McCARTHY sure catches his pitchers going in pennant style. On top of winning seven games in a row and 13 of the last 15 to tonight to crowd the Senators out of first place in the American League race, they have figured in the greatest exhibition of effectiveness given by any major league staff in recent years, with Johnny Allen, George Pipgras, Charley Ruffing and Vernon Gomez hurling four consecutive shutouts. But while this equals the American League mark for straight shutouts set by Cleveland in 1903 and duplicated by Boston in 1906, the world record still belongs to the Pirates.

Joe McCarthy

The string of six straight blanks registered by the Pittsburgh flingers in 1903 continues to stand as the peak in shutout pitching. On June 2, that year, Deacon Phillippe defeated Dummy Taylor and the Giants, 7 to 0; on June 3, Sam Leever defeated Joe McGinnity and the Giants, 5 to 0; on June 4, Irving Wilhelm defeated Wiley Piatt and Boston, 5 to 0; on June 5, Eddie Doheny defeated Charles Pittinger and Boston, 9 to 0; on June 6, Phillippe defeated Vic Willis and Boston, 4 to 0 (six innings), and on June 8, Leever defeated Frank Sparks and the Phils, 2 to 0.

THOUGH WAITE HOYT is making his first start in Pittsburgh as a National Leaguer, it isn't his first as a Pirate enemy. He started the first game of the world series of 1927 for the Yankees at Forbes Field against Remy Kremer and though Willis Moore relieved him in the eighth, inning Waite received credit for New Yorks 8-to-4 victory.

Hoyt pitched in seven world series, winning six games and losing four. In 1921 he pitched three complete games against the Giants without yielding an earned run. He did his best work under Miller Huggins. In 1927 and 1928 he won 55 games and lost only 14. His all-time record is 190 victories and 153 defeats.

THE CUBS' chances of getting Tony Freitas without losing the price are slimmer than ever since the Sacramento southpaw hurled in one of the early features of the Coast League season by pitching a no-hit game against Oakland.

Several weeks ago the Bruins offered $15,000 for Freitas, but the Sacramento owners said it wasn't enough and called off the deal. Now the price is certain to go up.

SPEAKING OF NO-HIT games, New York scribes are calling attention to Johnny Allen as a pitcher who hurled nine hitless innings in a row without breaking into the hall of fame or getting his face in any shaving soap ads—the last five innings of a game against Washington and the first four rounds of his next game against St. Louis. How about Steve Swetonic? The North Side star held the Reds hitless for three frames on April 16 and then let the Cards down without a safe blow for seven and two-thirds innings on April 20, or a total of 10 2-3 innings without being nicked for a safety, and yet not winning a place among the no-hit immortals.

Frank Crosetti

IT LOOKS AS though fancy price tags and a superabundance of publicity were having their usual effect upon widely advertised recruits in the major leagues this year. Perhaps these rookies will come through later, but so far they haven't lived up to advance notices.

A veteran observes that the new players most talked about in the spring crop were Frank Crosetti and Jack Saltzgaver, of the Yankees; Len Koenecke, of the Giants, and Stanley Hack, of the Cubs. They were given greater prominence in the headlines and more space on the sports pages than all the others combined.

BUT WITH FIVE weeks of the season completed, they appear to have lost a lot of their glitter. Crosetti is still held by Joe McCarthy and others to be a coming great but he has been hitting only around .250, a big drop from his .340 in the Coast League.

Saltzgaver failed to come up to expectations and was derricked in favor of Tonee Lazzeri, whom the Yanks had tried to trade. Hack has been lifted out of the Cub lineup because he didn't hit, lacked a snap throw and was bothered by slow rollers, and Koenecke has been a disappointment from the start. That has been the price of too much publicity for numerous recruits ever since the days of Marty O'Toole. Many of them can't stand the glare.

ONE OF THE oldest heads in the fight game, Willus Britt, gave the following reasons for the hatic slump when asked what ailed boxing: Lack of the right kind of talent. Lack of capable teachers of boxing. Too much politics. Too much pampering of boxers. Britt has little regard for the modern boxers. He says they doll themselves up in flashing silk robes and wear baby blue trunks with their monograms embroidered on them. That says Willus, is a positive tip-off on what is wrong with the game.

THE NEXT BIG horserace to command attention will be the Metropolitan Handicap, scheduled for Saturday at Belmont Park in New York. It is for 3-year-olds and upward, and the distance is one mile. A feature adding to the interest this year is the fact that the starters will include Equipoise, Cornelius V. Whitney's great comeback.

A strong choice in the Kentucky Derby of 1931, Equipoise had to be withdrawn and it was feared his racing days were over, but he has returned this year in a style that makes him a strong bidder for the ranking of the country's best handicap horse. He has been victorious in three starts on three different tracks and has won $17,800. His meeting with Mate and other topnotchers Saturday promises one of the most stirring races of the season. Equipoise will carry 127 pounds. Mate is top with 128.

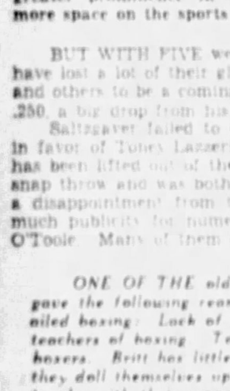
THE METROPOLITAN HANDICAP, first run in 1881, has been a history-making race. It was in this fixture in 1908 that Jack Hyatt created a new world record of 1 minutes 35 seconds, which still stands as the world mark for one mile in competition on a track.

The former record of 1:35 2-5 set by Cherry Pie has stood since 1923. Roamer, a 7-year-old, ran a mile at Saratoga in 1:34 4-5 in 1918, but he was running against time, not in competition. In England, Caiman and Blue Peter ran 1:33 in 1900 and 1924, respectively. Kepplestone made 1:34 2-5 in 1925, and in 1927 Spinnette and Harmos ran a dead heat in 1:34 2-5, but all of these performances were turned in on a straight away course.



Jack Dempsey

JACK DEMPSEY has been known to change his mind on several occasions, and possibly he may do it again, but it continues to look as though he has definitely abandoned his plan to fight at Reno this summer. "I don't see much chance for a Reno fight," is his latest on the subject. "The only available man who would draw a gate with me is Carnera. He wants $100,000 for his end, and that's too much. Max Baer isn't worth a dime after his fight with Paulino last summer. Sharkey, Schmeling, Levinsky—they all want too much dough. And there's the expense of staging a fight. The arena has to be moved or a new one built, which amounts to the same thing. I think I'll just stay in Los Angeles and manage my hotel, to which I have been giving my attention since it came back to me."

PANTHERS SEEK TWELFTH WIN OVER PLAID

By JESS CARVER

Seeking its first victory of the campaign and the twelfth in as many starts against Carnegie Tech, Pitt's track and field squad entrains Carnegie's varsity in the annual dual meet in the Pitt Stadium this afternoon. The affair will get under way at 3 o'clock.

Despite Carnegie's home meet record for the season with three meets won and one lost, the Panthers are strong favorites to repeat the triumphs of the past years. Tech victories are expected only in the hurdles, where Capt. Tom Collier, appears to be the class of the field, and in the javelin, hammer and pole vault. The [illegible] 440, 880, mile, two-mile, broad and high jumps, shot and discus are expected to [illegible] Pitt events, scoring 69 and those for Pitt en[illegible].

EXECUTION BY PEPPER POT—The veneration of ancestors is the fundamental feature of all religion in China and unfilial conduct is considered the most heinous crime. China's cheapest commodity is human life, but the entire country will be aroused by a crime against a parent. The rare crime of parricide is punished in a bizarre manner. The culprit is placed upon a bridge, and around him is erected a tower that looks like a pepper pot. Within that tower the culprit is immured alive to stand forever in an erect attitude, as an example to others. I drew this peculiar pepper pot monument on the spot in Nanking, for the purpose of incorporating it in the "Believe It or Not" series, resulting from my latest expedition to the Far East.

PITT GOLFERS MEET DUKES

By TOM BIRKS

Duquesne and Pitt linksmen hold the golf spotlight today, meeting this morning over the Oakmont Country Club layout.

The victory of the Blue and Gold of Pitt over Notre Dame at Highland last Saturday naturally sends the team into the match a heavy favorite. While the Pitt colors were flaunted over Notre Dame, the Red and Blue of Duquesne took a lacing from Villanova.

At Longue Vue this evening the Caddie Masters Association will be dinner guests of Edward McCoy. Officers will be elected, tourney dates set and caddie welfare discussed. A number of schola-tic matches are carded for this afternoon.

Tomorrow will be a big day in local golf. The first one-day tournament to be staged by the Pennsylvania Golf Association will be held at South Hills Country Club and there will be a one-day tourney for women at Allegheny. The women at Valley Heights and Chartiers Heights also will meet.

Yesterday Kiski's crack squad defeated Shady Side Academy representatives in a non-Conference match, 16 to 5. Jim Marks, Jr., turned in the best medal score of the day, a fine 38-40—78. The match was played at the Pittsburgh Field Club.

George L. Craig, Jr., of the Allegheny Country Club, scored a 38-36—74 to lead the field in the first tourney of the season to be staged by the local chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution at Pittsburgh Country Club. P. C. McKnight had a low net score of 104-28—76.

SHERDEL RELEASED

ST. LOUIS, May 17.—(AP.)—Bill Sherdel, former St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, has been given his unconditional release by the Boston Braves. Sherdel came to the Cards from Milwaukee in 1918 and remained until 1930, when he went to the Braves with Pitcher Fred Frankhouse in a trade for Burleigh Grimes.

Lawson Robertson

The OLYMPIC GAMES

By Lawson Robertson

Head Coach American Olympic Teams

Since Ben Eastman, the sensational Californian, turned the 440 in new world record time, most persons have settled back, sighed comfortably and declared:

"Well, this 400-meter race is one where we are an absolute cinch to win with Eastman and the almost equally great Vic Williams to step around in our behalf. we ought to finish one-two—with plenty of time and distance to spare."

No one would seem, if it weren't for a fellow named Rampling, a product of England. The man is a marvel, or I'm all wrong in my guessing and all my reports from Europe are somewhat lopsided.

RAMPLING TOUTED

Rampling is touted as the greatest 400-meter man in European history. He hung up a mark of 48 seconds last year, against the Olympic record of 47 2-5, but I hear that since then he has stepped in 47—and that he is in marvelous condition this spring.

England isn't a boastful nation and it never overestimates its athletes. Yet it is cocksure about Rampling, despite the time showings by Eastman and Williams. This Rampling is one man they'll bet on regardless, because it is their contention that he always has run well within himself, that he can go a bit faster than any man pace in the world.

It surely will be a marvelous and thrilling battle for the championship if Rampling is all that England claims, if Eastman and Williams can carry their present speed into late July and early August.

CHANCE FOR EASTMAN

Beyond Rampling, the European continent doesn't seem to offer much in the way of competition for America's great pair. Germany has Metzger with a mark of 48 1-5, which certainly is not fast enough to cause either of our boys to gallop to the limit. Hungary has Barsi, with 48 2-5—and that is even slower. But Hungary advises that Barsi can better that mark.

The only other European with figures under 49 is Zsitvai, also of Hungary, with 48 4-5.

So the race seems to be among Eastman, Williams and Rampling—and it ought to be worth the full admission price if the three get into the finals, for an epic duel is certain if Rampling is as great as his press notices.

YANKEES NEAR PIRATE MARK

Associated Press.

Stock in the New York Yankee pitching department, which up to 10 days ago was selling for something like a dime a dozen on the open market and very few takers at any price, and soared out of sight today.

Climaxing the most sensational streak seen in the American League in more than two decades, the Yankee curvers have tied a record that has stood for 26 years.

When Vernon Gomez set the Cleveland Indians down, 8 to 0, yesterday, he became the fourth consecutive member of Joe McCarthy's staff to blank the enemy. Johnny Allen started it last Wednesday by stopping St. Louis, 3 to 0. George Pipgras followed with a 6-to-0 decision over Chicago on Saturday, and Charles Ruffing whitewashed Cleveland Sunday, 5 to 0.

The feat ties the league record held jointly by the Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox of 1903 and 1906, respectively. The Yanks still have some distance to go, however, to equal the major league record of six straight shutouts set up by the Pittsburgh Nationals in 1903.

First place in the league standing was the prize that went with Gomez' triumph yesterday, the Yankees slipping ahead of Washington by a few points as the Senators were shut out the second straight day by St. Louis, 2 to 0.

Charley Berry, late of the Boston Red Sox, doubled in the tenth inning with Appling on base to give Chicago a hard-earned 4-to-3 victory over his former teammates. Detroit staged a five-run rally in the fourth to defeat the Athletics, 6 to 4.

Red Lucas, of the Reds, was touched for only three hits in beating the Giants, 6 to 2.

Riggs Stephenson's single with three aboard in the last of the ninth gave the Chicago Cubs an 11-to-10 victory over the Phillies.

LATE OUTBURST BY VISITORS ROUTS BUCS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The reaction today of Pirate fans concerning Max Carey's Dodgers was very favorable to the Dodgers. The former Buccaneer star made his managerial debut in Pittsburgh yesterday and while his club is staggering along in the second division, the showing of the Brooklyn laddies in their inaugural here stamps them as a club with a lot of natural skill.

It fell to the good fortune of the rejuvenated Dodgers to put over one of the biggest innings Forbes Field has furnished in many seasons as the invaders put the kibosh on the Buccos. Carey's crew had the old game practically on the ice as they came in for their ninth-inning swings, but when they finally were reured their big inning showed a net production of eight runs and eight hits. They won the one-sided contest, 11 to 1.

HARRIS TO PITCH

The second game of the series is down on the books for this afternoon. Bill Harris will attempt to hold the Flatbush swatters in check. It is likely Texas League Bill will be opposed by Ray Phelps, one of the biggest righthanders in the game.

Owing to the brilliant slab performance of Val Mungo, youth righthander of the Dodgers, which was in direct contrast to the home pitching, the Oaklanders were made to resemble a very "bushy" club as they bowed to the Long Islanders in the first clash of the four-game series. On the previous afternoon, in Brooklyn, Steve Swetonic blanked the Dodgers on two hits, so perhaps they were in a mood for revenge as they lined up for the clash of yesterday.

As long as Larry French was in the game the contest was fairly close, the Dodgers contenting themselves with picking up a run at a time. French worked six rounds before giving way to a pinch hitter and Glenn Spencer followed him to the hill. Spencer was O. K., but when Ervin Brame stepped out in the ninth the game immediately left the competitive class to become a walkaway.

BRAME ROUTED

Brame has been a very poor pitcher for the Pirates since the season began more than a month ago, but he was so far from championship class yesterday the fans were disgusted and they gave vent to their feelings in no uncertain way.

Johnny Frederick slammed a homer into the rightfield stands during the melee. Brame eventually made way for Chagnon.

Mungo, turning in a four-hit victory for Carey, achieved a big feat when one considers that the big boy has not yet attained his majority. He had the Pirate batters under subjection throughout the contest.

Chillysauce

Max Carey states that Mungo, Eastern League rookie who subdued the Buccos, has as much natural stuff as Dazzy Vance. That's a lot of stuff.

The fans were thrilled by the eight-run drive of the ninth, even though it was thrown at the home team. Few left the park before the bombardment closed.

Brame didn't seem to have much on his fast ball and apparently he was growing it for the Dodgers.

The fans booed Manager Gibson because he did not send Paul Waner to the plate on Paul's triple in the eighth. A pinch relay of the ball probably would have stopped Paul.

Dazzy Taylor played fine ball in relief for the Dodgers, he clicked with three hits and he was a greyhound on the paths.

Dan has hundreds of fans hoping he will show Rogers Hornsby he made a bad slip when Hornsby ranked the West Newton boy of action in the course of a recent Cub-Pirate game in the Oakland Orchard.

New York Black Yankees vs. Soho McKnights
Homestead Grays vs. Cuban Giants at Alliance O.
Bethel Club at Beaver A. C.

Featured by a trio of contests in the City League, a heavy schedule confronts district sandlot baseball teams this evening.

In City League games, Reliance Life meets the North Siders at the Salt Works, the Frank Ferris nine clashes with Homewood and the J. L. Thomas nine travels to Stowe.

Outside of league competition, the Soho McKnights, who trimmed the Pittsburgh Cardinals at Sharon Sunday for the second time this season, will clash with the New York Black Yankees at Greenlee Field.

BROSKY TO HURL

Brosky probably will get the hurling assignment from Manager Pat Griffin. The Yankees are becoming very popular on the Hill. Fans still are talking of Scales' feat of driving the ball over the center field fence against the Crawfords last Saturday. When that ball landed down Bigelow boulevard Scales was $50 richer.

The Crawfords, by the way, got off to a good start at Indianapolis, splitting a doubleheader. Manager Oscar Charleston was presented a traveling bag by the Hoosier fans.

In the West Penn League, Duquesne Republicans go to Carrick Eagles and the St. Clair Frogs tangle with Turtle Creek.

Plenty of action is on tap in the Greater Pittsburgh League. Whitaker clashes with Edgewood, Verona goes to Hunter street grounds to meet the Wilkinsburg Murs and Iroquois travels to West Penn Park to battle Immaculate Heart.

BOOKS DOWN THOMAS

In City League frays played last evening, the Books defeated J. L. Thomas, 6 to 3; Geislers upset the champion Dormont entry, 8-7, and the North Siders and Frank Ferris nines tied, 8-8.

Swissvale Firemen defeated the Jenkins in a Greater Pittsburgh circuit fray, 7-0, while Edgewood defeated Verona, 4-1. The Scott Morgans won over the Pittsburgh Cardinals in the County loop, 8-3. Millers downed Walls A. C., 12-0 in the Metropolitan loop. Wilson nosed out the West Enders, 3 to 2, in the city section of the Greater Pittsburgh League and in an East-West Negro League fray, played at Canton, the Homestead Grays defeated the Cuban Giants, 3 to 2.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, May 1. — I said today, "Griff, your ball team is making money. Could you advance me $20?"

Nick Altrock

Griff said, "Making money—nothing! Our increased attendance is only Congressmen in on passes who are exercising economy for the U. S. A."

I said, "Passes or not, I need $20."

Griff said, "I'll do better than that. Here's a $1,000 Peruvian bond."

I said, "I would rather have $20, and I'd prefer it in gold."

Grif said, "So, you're after my back teeth."

I said, "No. Just advance me $20 in gold."

Griff whistled, "Just Sylvia," and slipped me a dime.

No matter what the experts tell you, the depression is still on.

NEW NET LOOP IN MAKING

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Pittsburgh Tennis Association expansion plans made contact with the Kiski Valley area yesterday as Arthur Garnaker, former University of Michigan star, and Bruce Blystone, veteran Westmoreland County net enthusiast, conferred with P. T. A. President J. Phillips Davis here with view to formation of a racquet loop aiming to embrace Vandergrift, Apollo, Leechburg, Tarentum Y. M. C. A. and Ford City.

The out-of-town delegates, representing a strong Vandergrift net group, were optimistic of success in promotion of a five or six-team circuit for the current season.

Following his session with the Vandergrift visitors, President Davis announced that, in accordance with the promise of P. T. A. officials to send leading Steel City tennis performers into all communities from which requests for exhibition troupes may be received, a squad of Pittsburghers will be recruited to jaunt to Vandergrift for special jousts there Saturday, May 28.

An attempt also will be made to schedule an informal tussle here next Sunday between a Vandergrift outfit and one of the arrays of P. T. A. Inter-Club League.

SCHOOL TEAMS BUSY TODAY

By JULIUS LEVIN

With games scheduled in each of the two City League sections, a flock of contests in the four divisions of the W. P. I. A. L. and matches carded in both sections of the Golf Conference, followers of high school athletics hereabouts have a varied program of events in store this afternoon.

Today's baseball contests mark the close of the regular season, but the playing off of postponed games will extend the campaign to a certain extent. The scholastic nines ran afoul of bad weather at the outset and the majority of the early-season battles were called off.

The Schenley High nine, defending champion in the City League, entertains Peabody while Westinghouse is host to Allegheny Vocational in Section I. Frays Oliver plays at Langley in Section II.

McKees Rocks plays Carnegie-Crafton opposes Dormont, Ambridge clashes with Monaca, Cecil invades Findlay, Canonsburg goes to Hickory, Wilkinsburg opposes the McKeesport W. P. I. A. L. champion at McKeesport, Elizabeth entertains Edgewood and Rankin is host to Turtle Creek Union in W. P. I. A. L. games.

Two City League games were taken care of yesterday, Allegheny defeating Carrick, 2-1, and Peabody downing Allderdice, 7-4. In the W. P. I. A. L., Crafton walloped Stowe, 7-1; Aliquippa won over Beaver, 7-2, and Turtle Creek beat Edgewood, 3-2.

Golf matches find Wilkinsburg at Arnold, Allderdice at Schenley, Carrick at Oliver, Beltzhoover at Peabody and McKeesport at Rook.

The annual track and field meet of the Allegheny County elementary schools will be staged at the Schenley Oval today. Boys and girls of 16 borough and nine township schools will compete.

Prices
Record-breakingly Low!

Never in Goodyear experience—never in all tire history—have the prices of Goodyear Tires been as low as they are today. Don't try to guess them by what you last paid for tires. They're 50% lower than they were five years ago—38% lower than in 1929. And your money today buys the handsomest, toughest, longest-wearing Goodyear All-Weather ever built. Think of that, and ask yourself: Why buy any second-choice tire when first-choice costs no more!

The difference in SAFETY is about 10,000 Miles

ANYONE who gives a little thought to non-skid safety must quickly conclude that there are only two kinds of tire treads.

One has straight, smooth, sled-runner ribs of rubber where the tire contacts the road.

The other has tough, stout, sharp-edged, sure-biting traction blocks in the center of the tread.

Virtually all tires fit the first description — and the one important exception is the Goodyear All-Weather Tread.

It is interesting to note in this connection that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

THEY must find by experience that center traction makes Goodyear Tires safer — but you might like to ask "how much?"

The answer, as nearly as we can figure is — about 10,000 miles.

A new tire with smooth rubber in the center of the tread is no safer than a Goodyear after its tread-center has worn smooth in use.

And judging from average driving experience, Goodyear All-Weather Tread Tires keep their clean-cut center traction — their non-skid safety — for somewhere around the first 10,000 miles.

You can draw your own conclusions, but it looks to us as if this made Goodyears 10,000 miles safer than other tires.

There seem to be several million motorists like yourself who have reached the same conclusion, because Goodyear Tires are first choice by millions.

If you want extra safety in the next tires you buy, just ask yourself one question: Why buy a second-choice tire when first-choice costs no more?

Why be satisfied with a second-choice tire when FIRST-choice costs no more!

STOCKS REGAIN LOSSES ON RALLY

Steel Leads Market Rise On 'Good News' Rumors; Oils Strong on Upturn

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP.)—The stock market fluttered uncertainly today but seemed more inclined to move forward than to retreat.

After most of yesterday's late upturn had been lost in the first hour, the market rallied briskly to the accompaniment of fresh rumors of constructive developments in Washington sold off again on publication of the weekly carloadings figures but recovered after midday to around the best levels of the morning with United States Steel in the lead.

Oils showed notable strength on the upturn and even the rails which had been distinctly heavy during the morning joined the procession. Union Pacific and Santa Fe completely recovered early declines of nearly 3. United States Steel was a leader in the afternoon recovery, getting up nearly 2 points. American Can gained more than a point as did Corn Products and Du Pont. The morning upturn in the oils was not well maintained but such issues as Standard of New Jersey and California, and Royal Dutch got up a point or so. American Telephone completely recovered an early drop of 2⅜. Soft spots included Beatrice Creamery, Underwood Elliott and International Shoe, off about 2.

The rumors regarding Washington developments appeared to be the chief factor in the better tone of the market, which brokerage quarters attributed largely to short covering. These rumors remained highly nebulous however, and were apparently based primarily on a more cheerful attitude toward the prospects of passage of the tax measure. A better tone in the bond market, and further firmness in wheat, were undoubtedly factors also, in the improvement in shares.

The early decline possibly reflected some disappointment that some of the bullish rumors heard yesterday had failed to materialize, but even more important may have been the fact that the bond market had failed to participate in the yesterday's late upturn. Important banking quarters are inclined to the view that any sustained improvement in stocks will require a decided improvement in the bond market.

The freight car loadings figures for the week ended May 7, showing a decline of more than 20,000 cars from the previous week, bore out early adverse estimates. The I. C. C. approval of $25,500,000 Reconstruction loan to the Baltimore and Ohio, however, was interpreted favorably, and the report of car loadings by the Santa Fe for the week ended May 14, showing a moderate gain over the previous week, gave rise to hopes that next week's figures for the country at large would be more cheering.

Oil stocks were firm largely in response to the Supreme Court's upholding of proration in Oklahoma, and the reports that the conferences of world producers, including the Russians, have begun in earnest. The Chicago bulk gasoline market, however, has eased somewhat. American Telephone recovered from its early slump, as financial news tickers reported that ordering of another regular dividend of $2.25 was probable at tomorrow's directors meeting.

WHEAT PRICES SCORE GAINS

CHICAGO, May 17.—Sympathizing with initial stock market downturns, grain prices sagged early today, but the effect proved transient. Rallies accompanied continued unfavorable domestic winter wheat crop advices from the Southwest. Opening at ⅜ off to ¼ up, wheat later showed some setback all around, and then rose to well above yesterday's finish. Corn started at ¼ decline to ⅛ advance, underwent a slight general drop, and subsequently scored gains.

Quick advances of more than 1½ cents a bushel from the early low point took place in wheat, coincident with new firmness of securities. Corn and oats responded readily to wheat strength. Provisions rose with cereals.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

Record Is Made When Slain Girl's Mother Talks In Her Sleep

CHAPTER XXXV.

"I wonder," Colt mused aloud, "if Multooler found where Christine received the death sting?"

"He ought to be here any minute now. By the way, chief—shall I get Vincent Rowland for you?"

Thatcher Colt flashed me a baffling glance of his great dark eyes. I could not understand why Baldwin's accusations against Rowland had failed greatly to excite the chief. Very calmly he emptied the dottle from his pipe into an old-fashioned druggist's mortar that served as an ash tray on Baldwin's desk.

"Fortunately," he replied, "we have had Rowland shadowed. His movements from the time he left the pent house until this moment are unquestionably a matter of police observation. It is possible to conceive that Rowland struck at Lola. But how could he have killed Christine?"

And after a moment's pause, Colt added:

"If Vincent Rowland is guilty of these murders—and it is perfectly possible that he is—then he is using some device or some confederate that we have not as yet discovered."

Further discussion was cut short by the arrival of Dr. Multooler. The round face of the assistant medical examiner was pale and peaked and the rims of his bright blue eyes were like scarlet hoops. All night he had labored in his gruesome work upon the bodies of Lola and Christine. Now, without rest, he must get to work upon the third victim.

SECRETARY QUESTIONED

With a tart glance at the prostrate figure of his dead confrere, Dr. Multooler knelt beside him and made a hasty examination.

"Bitten by the same bug—and right in the neck," was the medical examiner's terse comment. "No doubt of the symptoms by this time. I could spot them from here to Welfare Island. And no doubt of my certificate—plain case of suicide. But I guess you better ship him down to Bellevue and let me do a complete job."

"Exactly," concurred Thatcher Colt. "Meanwhile, I have done as much as possible here. Tony, notify Flynn to send for the body. Meanwhile, I want to ask a few questions of that young lady outside."

While the Commissioner was engaged in earnest conversation with Dr. Baldwin's secretary, I reached Flynn, who remained in the penthouse. Flynn then informed me that for the first time there were stirrings of life in the apartment. Mrs. Carewe was awake, and sitting up to eat her breakfast in bed. The food had been cooked in a nearby restaurant and brought in by one of the detectives. Eunice, the maid, was still asleep. Chung was busy cleaning up. The butler was wearing a blue robe this morning, even more magnificent than the one he had displayed the night before. Dorothy Lox was still with Mrs. Carewe, but was about to be relieved by a successor arriving from headquarters.

TALKS WITH MISS LOX

All of this I dutifully reported to Thatcher Colt. His dark eyes were clouded with thought; they seemed more melancholy than ever. But when I told him about Dorothy Lox, I saw his eyes flash with new interest.

"I must talk with her," he said. "I was afraid she would be gone. Let's go right upstairs. We have that luncheon date with Dougherty, but I must see our girl detective first."

Flynn, one eye closed, but the other twinkling with lightning, received us in the living-room, the doors of which were all guarded with patrolmen in uniform. In low tones, Colt told Flynn of Baldwin's letter. The old policeman crossed himself.

"Now," concluded Colt, "I would like to have a talk with Miss Lox."

Presently the stout and motherly spinster detective who had figured in so many of our sensational cases came out of the bedroom of old Mrs. Carewe. After her long vigil she looked peaked and drawn. But she greeted Colt crisply and cheerfully.

"Very little to report, Mr. Colt, except that old Mrs. Carewe spent a very restless night. She talked in her sleep."

"Say anything important?"

"I made a stenographic record of all that she said. Would you like to have me read it to you?"

"By all means."

From the pocket of her jacket the girl drew out a memorandum book, about half the size of a stenographer's ordinary notebook. From this she began to read one of the strangest records to which I have ever listened, repeating over and over:

"That beast! That dirty beast! Ah, yes! I know who it is. Basil! Basil! Basil! Be careful, Basil!"

Here Dorothy paused to explain that these same words were repeated, for hours at a time. Then came a lull when the old woman sank into a slumber so profound that she said nothing at all.

"But about 6 o'clock this morning," Dorothy hastened on, "she began to talk again. She seemed half awake and half asleep. This is what she said:

"'I am going to tell on Mr. Rowland. What do I care if he tries to harm me. No one can harm me. Rowland thinks I don't know. I'll tell Mr. Colt—I'll tell him about Rowland—I am not afraid——'"

Here Dorothy Lox paused.

"Anything else?" prodded Colt.

"That was all," answered Dorothy.

"I think," said Colt, "I had better talk to Mrs. Carewe."

But why would he not send directly for Vincent Rowland?

REPEATS QUESTIONS

The haunted look still glimmered in the old woman's eyes. We stood by her bed, and she looked up at us through the wisps of her gray hair, as she chewed pitifully upon a crusty remnant of browned toast. Her breakfast tray was across her blanketed old shanks.

"Good morning, Mr. Colt," she greeted. "Have you found out who did it?"

The commissioner shook his head, as he drew up a chair by the side of her bed.

"I'm afraid I'll need your help to do that," he countered.

The old woman darted at him a gleam of undisguised suspicion.

"I? How can I help you? I don't feel as if I will ever be able to get out of this bed again but I'll have to do that for the funeral. I don't believe I'll ever live through that."

She began to cry.

"Mrs. Carewe," began Colt hastily—even after years of police work he has never been able to endure passively the tears of a woman—"I shall have to put to you again what I asked you so solemnly last night—do you know of any person who would have a good reason for wishing your daughter dead?"

The old woman dried her eyes with a lace handkerchief, and then shook her head vigorously.

"No one, Mr. Colt. Everybody liked Lola."

She shot a glance at Thatcher Colt as if to gauge the effect of her reply.

"You did not know of any person with whom she had quarreled violently?"

Again that vigorous shake of the head and an equally vigorous denial.

"We went over all that last night," she added querulously. "I'm not up to much this morning, Mr. Colt."

But the commissioner was not to be put off.

"Do you remember two little boxes that your daughter had in her possession during the last few weeks?"

"Boxes? What kind of boxes?"

"A little larger, I should say, than a pack of cards. Much thicker than that. Probably of unpainted wood. Ever see anything like that?"

"No, I don't remember anything like that. What would she keep in them?"

"Something alive!"

"Alive!" squeaked the old woman. "What do you mean—something alive—"

"A creature whose sting is instant death."

The Commissioner and the mother stared at each other in painful silence.

"Why would Lola want anything like that?" asked the old woman at last.

"I was hoping you could tell me that."

The mother's withered lips shaped themselves into a thick downward arc.

"She had a dog and a parrot—but what kind of creature would she have in that box?"

"A scorpion," replied Thatcher Colt quietly.

Mrs. Carewe sat up very straight in her bed.

"The scorpion was the name of the dance that Lola made famous," she declared, a note of wonder in her voice.

"I know that, too," responded Thatcher Colt.

"Was it the scorpion that bit her, Mr. Colt?"

"Yes."

The old eyelids quivered, the aged breath came in spasmodic gasps, and then the body slid down, spilling a half-filled cup of coffee in a brown puddle on the tray. Once more the strain of these grisly questions was too much for the mother.

"She's really in a bad way, Mr. Colt," murmured Dorothy Lox, as she hastened to the bedside. "She told me that she has had heart trouble for years. I really think she should have a doctor."

"But her doctor is dead," muttered Thatcher Colt. "See that she is watched over by a department physician for the time being. Will you come back tonight, Miss Lox?"

"Yes, sir."

Synopsis

Lola Carewe and her guest, Christine Quires, are mysteriously murdered in the former's apartment. Scorpions were the instruments of death. The police suspect Guy Everett, the last person to see Christine alive. Lola had blackmailed Everett. He, however, claims that Christine discovered a plot to kill Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt learns that a young Paris bank clerk, named Basil Boucher, loved Lola. After robbing a bank to buy her a ruby, Basil disappeared. His parents sold medical laboratory specimens. Edward Quires, Christine's brother, left his Rochester home for New York following the receipt of a telegram the day of the murders. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Suspicion also points to Dr. Hugh Baldwin when it is disclosed that he purchased scorpions. He had stated heart failure caused the deaths. Colt, calling to question Baldwin, finds him dead—from a scorpion bite! Colt wonders if Baldwin was the victim of a trick or deliberately released the scorpion. In Baldwin's desk Colt finds a statement in which the doctor says he accidentally poisoned Gaylord Gifford, Lola's husband. Lola's knowledge of this placed Baldwin in her power. She forced him to supply narcotics which she used to victimize her friends and later blackmail them. Then she ordered him to obtain a scorpion to commit a murder. Baldwin learned that Vincent Rowland was behind Lola's activities. Realizing he would be exposed, Baldwin secured another scorpion and committed suicide after the death of the two girls.

Now Go On

Colt explained the cause of Lola's death.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Applauds Madge's Reading of Fourth Act.

There was a note of such smug satisfaction in Philip Veritzen's voice as he asked me if he were wrong in supposing that Dicky was very much annoyed at him that I was tempted to pick up the nearest hard object I could reach and hurl it at his smiling face.

"Oh, I'm sure you are mistaken," I said in my very sweetest manner and forcing myself to smile innocently at him.

"You forget," he said suavely, "that I have been a student of men for many years. I have studied their faces and their eyes and I rarely make a mistake in my observation of them."

His eyes bore down into mine as if he would compel me to agree with him. But I shook my head with a light little laugh, while under my surface calmness I was seething. He should not have this mean little triumph over Dicky, I told myself, and I cared no whit what the consequences of his certain displeasure might be, to me.

"And you forget," I said lightly, "that, as the old proverb has it, I have summered and wintered with my husband for a number of years. I flatter myself that I know his every mood and tense, and I am exceedingly certain that he was not annoyed. When he is busy—and slightly worried—as I know him to be today, his manner is apt to be slightly curt and abstracted."

A DIFFICULT TASK

"Oh, but you musn't libel him that way," Mr. Veritzen said. "His manner was everything that was sweet and courteous, but I still hold to my opinion, despite your very eloquent disclaimers, that somehow I inadvertently have offended him. But there's no use our arguing about it," he went on, smiling genially, "you have your opinion, and I have mine, and, apparently, 'never the twain shall meet,' so let us drop the whole thing and consider instead this highly interesting pile before me."

He waved a languid hand toward the manuscript, which he had placed upon a small tabouret near him and I saw that unless I wished to run the risk of a definite serious break with him, which I knew Dicky would be unwilling to have me execute upon his account, I must accept what he evidently considered was a generous compromise, in our dispute.

"I think you'll find it nicely typed," I said, in desperation, using the first words that came into my head. "Mr. Graham has a very good man for that work."

"Is he the same man that did the typing of your third act?" he asked.

"Yes," I answered laconically.

"Then I'm sure that it is all right," he said, "for the other was most satisfactory. But I do not intend to read it myself, at least, at first, today. I have a fancy for hearing what you will do with it."

I tried to conceal my dismay. It was bad enough to watch Philip Veritzen's face while he read this finale, the fourth act, which was to determine the fate of my play, but it was positively terrifying to think of reading aloud my work to this most captious of critics, who had listened to the trained voices of the most brilliant stars in the theatrical firmament.

PRODUCER IS PLEASED

But my pride would not let me betray a single qualm, and it was with a steady, cheerful voice that I answered him.

"I'm afraid I shall 'execute' it," I said smiling. "The poor thing will be hanged at least if not drawn and quartered by the time I get through with it."

"Suppose you let me be the judge of that," he said with an answering smile.

"Very well," I said, and forthwith took up the manuscript and settled myself in a chair. Mr. Veritzen relaxed into the chair opposite and stretching his arms high above his head, rested them upon the chair back.

I had been so absorbed in the writing of my play that the characters had grown to be almost like real persons to me, and after the first few speeches I lost sight of Mr. Veritzen and even of the room in which I was. Transported as if by a magic carpet to the scene whereon my mental puppets walked and talked, I found them so real that I merged my own personality into them and was recalled to reality only by Mr. Veritzen's enthusiastic hand clapping when I reached the last line in the mouth of the last character to speak.

"Bravo, bravo!" he said. "Really, I think I should like you for the leading woman's roles. Will you take it?"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Sunday afternoon's special matinee at the Stanley Theater for the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club was such a whale of a success that it is well worth a few more lines in this department. The parade from the Sun-Telegraph to the theater, with 3,000 youngsters in line headed by the Schenley Chapter Band, was a sight well worth looking at—3,000 laughing, yelling, happy boys and girls. In many cases the littlest tots were carried on the backs of their big brothers. And the scene in the theater was a sight to be remembered for a life-time.

Three thousand clear, ringing juvenile voices repeating the pledge of the club—loyalty, good behavior and kindness. Three thousand children standing with hands upraised in the salute to the flag when Boy Scout Troop No. 75 came on the stage with the group of colors. Yes, it was an inspiring sight. Young Dave Jeffery of the Schenley chapter officiated as master of ceremonies and, if he has no greater ambition, he can settle right down to this profession for life.

The youngsters were not afraid to applaud the clever juvenile acts in the Komic Club Revue put on by Mrs. Kelly's dancing school. And they yelled for more when Bernie Armstrong, at the organ console, came to the end of his program of popular songs for them to sing.

In the meantime the Warner Theaters management had arranged for a splendid showing of pictures, including comedies and the "County Fair" as the feature. Those 3,000 children yelled with delight at the amusing scenes in the comedies and the thrills in the big picture.

Take it all in all, it was a wonderful day for the club. The Warner Theaters brought into service for the day no less than 100 of their employes, including executives, and the Sun-Telegraph furnished 30 men to care for the youngsters. Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh furnished a squad of police.

John H. Harris, district manager for the Warners in the Pittsburgh area, said that it was the most inspiring, happiest and most successful children's theater party he had ever seen in all his years with local theaters.

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

The Spoils System Hit

Judge Patterson's Decision Deals a Blow to a Pernicious Practice

The selfish spoils system, under which victorious politicians see fit to use public office to promote their personal interests, received a blow in the conviction of Mayor Kline and former Director of Supplies Succop of malfeasance in office.

It was also hit in a decision handed down by Judge Patterson in Common Pleas Court Saturday, upholding the right of the Civil Service Commission to reinstate civil service employes who have been removed from office without adequate cause.

The Civil Service Commission in late years has been subservient to Mayor Kline and his department heads when they discharged faithful city employes for political reasons, in order to give their jobs to men better able to deliver votes. "Civil service reform," won after many years of effort, had virtually been lost in Pittsburgh.

Then came the commission's surprising action in ordering the reinstatement of two clerks who were dismissed by Director of Supplies Dunlap. The cause of good government gained by the commission's ruling, and the gain has been made secure by Judge Patterson's ruling.

The court laid a finger on one of the sore spots in our municipal government in saying:

"Every municipal election is a tragic example of the results that inevitably follow in those departments of government which have been exempted from civil service, and appointment, promotion, reduction, reinstatement and removal committed to the fancy, prejudice and political aspirations of the department head or his superior."

The sooner the spoils system is done away with, not only in the city but also in the county government, the better it will be for the people.

The merit system is the only system that assures the taxpayers that they will get their money's worth of service.

The merit system and the spoils system are incompatible.

Why Not Pittsburgh?

Rate Reductions Elsewhere Emphasize the Unfairness Of the Charges for Electric Service Here.

In densely populated communities the cost to an electric company of supplying light and power to the people is less than in places not so populous. In a city where houses are close together, or a number of families may live in a single building, the cost per customer—the cost to the company, that is—ordinarily is far smaller than in the rural districts or small towns where houses are farther apart and more wire and poles and equipment must be used.

This makes it all the more remarkable and inexcusable that while electric rates are going down in other parts of Western Pennsylvania they remain unchanged in Pittsburgh. Why does not the Duquesne Light Company reduce its excessive rates? Has it lost all appreciation of the value of good will?

We have called attention in these columns lately to a number of nearby towns in which electric rates have been reduced within the last few weeks—in Natrona, and Punxsutawney and Brockway, for example.

Another rate reduction was announced yesterday—in Kane. The West Penn Power Company has given the borough a five-year contract at a great saving and at the same time has promised private consumers a new schedule, effective June 15, which will bring their light bills down appreciably.

City Council and the Assistant City Solicitor in charge of public utilities matters might get in touch with the public authorities in Kane and these other places and find out how they succeeded in getting the rate cuts.

If the companies reduced their charges voluntarily, their action places the Duquesne Light Company in an invidious position.

Education for Prisoners

The Work Started by Joseph Engelsberg in the County Jail Should Not Be Abandoned.

On being released yesterday from the County Jail, where he served a term of six months for violation of the liquor laws, Joseph Engelsberg, formerly Republican chairman of the Third Ward, declared he intended to forget his prison experience—"as if it had never happened."

That is a natural and excusable wish, to be sure. But how fine it would be if Engelsberg would continue interested in the promotion of prisoners' education!

While in jail he saw an opportunity for usefulness in the ignorance of many of the inmates. He obtained books from his home and donated them to the prison as a nucleus for a library. Other books were procured and Engelsberg, at his own request, was appointed librarian. He supervised the reading of the prisoners and undertook to improve their education.

According to Warden McNeil, Engelsberg did creditable work and will be missed.

It is to be hoped the education of the prisoners will continue. Perhaps Engelsberg, after recovering from the humiliation of imprisonment, will change his mind about forgetting it, and will be willing to help, from outside the prison, in the good work that he started while an inmate.

An Important Convention

Pennsylvania Bankers, Meeting in Pittsburgh, Have Many Things to Discuss.

The banking situation bears so close a relationship to the general business situation that the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, starting in Pittsburgh today, is of wide public interest.

Banking problems are inseparably connected with the problems involved in present economic conditions, hence the addresses that are scheduled for delivery by nationally known financial experts should receive close attention.

Since the last convention of the association many Pennsylvania banks have closed their doors, and out of their closing have arisen important questions of law and policy and management. We trust that the discussion of these things at the convention will show where mistakes have been made, and prevent their being made hereafter.

The convention is one of the most important that Pittsburgh will entertain this year.

Make the Dream Come True

The deplorable situation in the Hawaiian Islands can be solved in one way and only one way—BY MILITARY CONTROL OF THE TERRITORY.

It should be done immediately.

The government at Washington has a habit of making cowardly compromises with unpleasant facts. Such a course with Hawaii will be ineffective and unacceptable.

Definite action is imperative.

As the key to the Pacific, Hawaii should be made the GIBRALTAR OF THE PACIFIC.

The one thing for Congress to do is to ACT.

Love's Endurance Tests

Love can survive a quarrel, a deception and even a long separation—but not a one-sided passion for spring onions.

* * *

Making a success of marriage may be a feat, these days, but it's always a sinecure beside making a permanent joy of single blessedness.

In every love-nest, there are dull gray mornings, for the fondest husband and wife when each bottles up his or her grouch and dares the other to come along with a corkscrew.

* * *

A long engagement is an endurance test, in which the girl waits for the man to give up struggling and the man waits for the girl to give up hope.

* * *

In the tamest and most devoted husband, there is always somewhere a dead Don Juan, whose ghost stirs, sighs and makes a feeble effort to rise and haunt him every spring.

The modern woman may spend more time in the beauty parlor and less time in the kitchen than her mother did; but that may be because the modern husband insists on being vamped, while the old-fashioned husband was satisfied just to be fed.

* * *

A woman-chaser is a man who is capable of oceans of love, but usually contents himself with doling out just a little bit at a time to each woman.

* * *

Be as sweet and generous to the men as you like; but making a single man's life a bed of roses isn't likely to inspire him with a yearning to exchange it for the hard-pulling in the double harness of matrimony.

Even when he's out taking the Peke for an airing or toddling Junior 'round the block, a man likes to think of himself as a bold, reckless caveman or a dashing Don Juan, at heart.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Request

Because you love me well you offer me
Such gifts as love has brought through ages long
To the beloved—a bit of lazuli,
A moon-white rosebud and a tender song.
Because you love me well, sometimes you say:
"Tell me, my own, what most your heart desires;
A garden-plot, with birds and roses gay;
A glowing ruby, lit with ruddy fires?"

Because I love you well (how well God knows!)
I name the boon which I would have you bring,
A gift more lovely than the moon-white rose,
More precious than the jewels of a king:
Though years will steal our beauty, ardor, youth,
Give me always the priceless gift of truth!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 17.—Greenwich Village is becoming "village" again. The unwashed are returning to the attics. During boom years the New York Latin Quarter was threatened with absorption by the nouveaux riche. A sudden apartment house grandeur spread from Washington Arch.

Many tea rooms and waffle shops that were the Shinto Shrine of long-haired thinkers are back in circulation. Mama Bertilotti's is packed to capacity. The speakeasies desolated by the tug of de luxe uptown spots are enjoying brisk trade.

If some of the odd characters returned, The Village would be little different from 15 years ago. Characters such as Tiny Tim, the vendor of "soul candy;" Guido Bruno, the bookseller; Bobby Edwards and his cigar-box ukulele; Sonia, the cigaret-girl philosopher, and such.

Many lazing along sidewalk cafes of Montparnasse are back to the old haunts. Things are wretched among the expatriates over there. The sustenance provided cadgers by tourists has dried up. Paris' Left Bank is the bleakest since the war.

Staunch defenders of The Village hope the renaissance will not result in the usual commercial exploitation by pseudo-artists who gave the section its atmosphere of amusing sham. They believe it should be a real rendezvous for the creative.

High rents forced much of The Village desertion when the world was on the up and up. Garrets once renting for $25 monthly were ballooned to $150 and $200. It became "smart" to don smocks, Grecian robes and sandals, chant free verse canticles and luxuriate in the despairing glow of sputtering candles.

Today rents are not back to old figures, but they are near them. The Village will always be the target for jeers. But the truth is it has been the generating ground for many of America's foremost artists and novelists. Sinclair Lewis, Eugene O'Neill, Frederic MacMonnies and Theodore Dreiser to name a few.

* * *

Miss Margaret Wilson, the President's daughter and his striking image, is a top notch copy specialist in a New York advertising office. She is reputed to have an uncanny knack of phrases that leap out with an imperial flair, the sort that clinch campaigns.

* * *

This morning I groped about the dim and neutral emptiness of a theater for a seat to a rehearsal. No place I know is so spooky when deserted or so lively in action. After sitting in the abysmal blur for a long time I heard a faraway hollow cough. It was a scene-shifter showing up for work, but such was the nervous tension, I found myself making for the door, whistling off key in feigned bravado.

* * *

About the only Broadway restaurant to "pack 'em in" during the universal dullness is the Hollywood, the flamboyantly gay spot with a floor show sponsored by the lanky N. T. G. A New Yorker takes the auslander there because it sums up the provincial notion of The Gay White Way. N. T. G. is a beauty picker whose selections have filled chorus cavities at Ziegfeld's, Carroll's and White's for years.

* * *

N. T. G., incidentally, was originator of that unfailing trick to pep up cafe crowds—the sudden release of a flood of balloons from the ceiling. It will usually keep customers for another hour. Another hour and they may remain for closing.

* * *

It was Al Moasburg who, during a dull evening at the Friars, yawned and exclaimed: "Let's get an old sweater, a pair of khaki pants and go roughing it for a couple of weeks in Jay C. Flippen's hair."

* * *

On West Forty-sixth street a picket paces in front of a cafe with a sign: "Waiters on strike." A window card calmly announces: "Our waiters are not on strike."

* * *

I joined the ladies' after-dinner party last evening after spelling out a word before a 7-year-old in the smoking room. The brat, pointing to me, asked his mother what I meant, spelling out the word himself. I'm still in a cold dew.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You wanted to say a kind thing this morning—

BUT YOU DIDN'T DARE.

It seemed too impulsive.

You didn't know the other persons very well.

Maybe they'd think you were funny,

Or even impertinent.

And secretly laugh or scoff at you.

It would be terrible if they did that!

The fear of it stung like a blow.

And so you didn't say that kind thing you wanted to say.

So often it happens like that. There was that other impulse yesterday. Then you wanted to reveal your heart. You wanted to tell someone about that old worry that has been nagging you, about that sorrow you've never quite learned to bear.

One can't always talk about things like that; but now and then there comes a moment.

You had such a moment, didn't you? A casual acquaintance's kindly smile, understanding glance, seemed to open a locked door in your heart. For a moment you had an overwhelming desire to tell all about it—ask for help.

Then, like a black thing swooping down, came the old fear.

Would that stranger understand, or would he think you queer?

Or maybe he'd take advantage of your confession—use it against you, somehow—

And wouldn't you be ashamed and humiliated the next day when you realized what you had done?

Doubt; fear; suspicion. Instantly the frank impulse was gone. The door in your heart shut, barring out that seemingly friendly soul, shutting you in with your old loneliness and pain.

How often it happens like that!

DON'T LET IT!

Obey that impulse!

DARE TO GIVE YOURSELF!

Dare to give the love and laughter that bubble naturally within you.

Every soul you meet is hungry for just such friendliness. Aren't you hungry yourself? Doesn't it quicken you, hearten you, to feel sudden, surprising kindness? Aren't you grateful for it?

Of course you are. And the other fellow will be grateful, too—more grateful than you can know.

That kindly unexpected word may be a hand stretched down to help him out of hell!

And dare to share your pain! It is not a queer thing to do. It is the greatest compliment you can give another human—that sharing of grief.

There is a sort of sacred communion about it.

Do you remember when, as a child, you took your first communion—took, with wonder, that bit of bread, that sup of wine? Why? You did not understand.

But there, in that solemn silence, you felt something you had never felt before. Others were taking that wine and bread, too. You were taking it all together. You could feel the wonder and the silence. You could feel the rare tenderness and togetherness. Never had you felt so near other people before.

Grief is a communion, too—the bitter, black bread of human agony; the harsh, salt wine of human tears. Those who share that communion are never after entirely apart.

Dare to share your pain. Do not be proud about your tragedy. Every soul on earth has some pain hidden deep within the heart. Humble your pride and open your heart. Share your grief, or another's, as you would share bread and win. In giving comfort, you will find healing. You will never be so lonely again.

Dare to give yourself, and you will find yourself—there, in that stranger's heart.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Are you so engrossed with your hobby that you weary the members of your family, as well as your guests, by talking about it?

In practically all of your conversation at home you allude to it.

Not only do you devote more time to it than you should, but you neglect your other work and duties you should perform, and will not allow others in the family circle to carry on any other line of thought.

It may be a worthy hobby, it may be enlightening to one really interested in it, but why try to force it upon those who do not care for it?

Everyone needs a hobby as a means of relaxation.

If it be informative and remunerative, so much the better.

But when a hobby becomes your master you are letting it get to be your business and it ceases to be a hobby.

When you bore your friends and acquaintances with it you have gone too far.

It makes your mind a one-track mind prevents you from exercising personal charm which you might have if you were not so absorbed all the time.

Be a little more general in your hunt for knowledge and when you have a hobby, keep it in its place.

Let the other fellow have a chance to express himself about his hobby.

Washington Still Flounders

By PAUL BLOCK

Newspaper Publisher

(Reprinted From the Paul Block Newspapers of Saturday, May 14.)

THE Senate amendment of the House tax bill broadening the proposed amusement tax to include 10 per cent on all admission tickets costing more than 10 cents is a concrete example of the fact that the power to tax is the power to destroy.

The House had previously proposed a tax of 10 per cent on admissions costing more than 45 cents. This would have injured the business of thousands of motion picture theaters and producing companies, which are already losing tremendous sums, and now the Senate goes even farther than the House, proposing a tax on all tickets. This will definitely close thousands of theaters and will mean the virtual destruction of an industry which employs hundreds of thousands of people.

Even now without a tax it is estimated that half the motion picture theaters of the country are losing money because of lack of patronage due to unemployment and reduced income. Of the 12,000 theaters now open, it is believed 5,000, mostly neighborhood and small-town houses, will be forced to close. This will mean a loss not alone to the owners of the houses and their employes, but also to the cities which collect realty taxes on them. It will mean, too, a loss to the motion picture producers who, deprived of possibly half their already small market, will be forced to reduce operations, lay off more people, and contribute further to unemployment, while bondholders and stockholders scattered all over the country would see a further shrinkage in the values of their securities.

And the most ironic part of it all would be that the government would not receive the revenue it hopes to get even though it destroys an industry in the effort to get it.

The task of the men in Washington is admittedly difficult, but it would not be one-half so difficult if they would face facts. The country must have the budget balanced, but not in a way that would destroy instead of help trade.

Let taxes be raised equitably through a sales tax and a tax on legalized beer. These items alone would be sufficient to take care of the deficit. They would be generally popular. They would help revive employment and, if followed by a prosperity bond issue such as Senator Robinson has proposed, and which bill the writer and other publishers have urged Congress to pass, the country would then definitely find an upturn in business.

What a difference all this would make to the unfortunate eight or ten million people who are out of work, for the many millions who have only part-time work and for the many business houses which are hovering between success and failure!

The country demands action from Congress. Let us see that these demands are met.

GRANDMA'S IDEAS

By Winifred Black

Grandma looked up—not from her knitting, or her tatting, or her stocking darning. She looked up from her new manual on auction bridge, and took a part in the conversation.

That is a bit unusual, so we all listened to Grandma, just for once.

"I missed a great opportunity to do a good deed the other day," said Grandma, shaking her head so that her white hair glistened in the light of the dancing fire—a fire that cheered the room like a smile on the face of one well-loved.

"That child culture expert came here for tea," said Grandma, "after she spoke at the club about the study of childhood. I promised I'd send her down to the station. She was going into the country somewhere to make the same address at some other club.

"We went right down to the ferry slip, and I might have got out of the car and sent the chauffeur across the street on an errand, and then started the car right off into the water. No, I couldn't have done that, could I, without being in the car myself? Well, I could have slipped into my grandson's laboratory and picked up a few of those typhoid germs he's so fussy over, and I could have slipped them into the child culture woman's tea, and saved a lot of people a whole lot of trouble."

Grandma stretched her arm and took a cup of tea herself, and we all stared at her in amazement.

"Shocked, aren't you?" said Grandma. "Well, maybe I did put it a bit too strong, but I really mean a good deal of it.

"It wasn't so bad when people had big families. All the child culture rubbish in the world couldn't have kept my sister Marty from slapping me, if I got what she called 'too smart;' and no matter how much somebody indulged and 'studied' my brother, Jim, brother Tom would have made it his business to take the conceit out of him.

"But these poor, little one or two children, and their conscientious mothers who 'study' them from morning to night, and let them 'express themselves,' as they call it—what chance have the poor things to grow up into sensible human beings, that know how to live with other human beings?

"I haven't been near my niece's house for months, and I love my niece. I'd love her children, but my niece would let me, but just simply won't let anybody love them.

"She thinks it is wrong to curb a child's individuality, so she lets them slide down the banister and throw a football in the living room, and the last time I was there both of those poor 'studied' children were skating all through the house on roller skates, and I couldn't hear a word my niece was trying to say.

"I wonder what she thinks those children are going to do when they put on their roller skates in somebody else's house, and get well snubbed for it?

"I do wish," said Grandma, "that people would stop being so brilliant and daring and original, and cultivate some plain common sense in themselves, and some plain, decent, good manners in their children.

"Yes, I'm sort of sorry about the typhoid germs. That woman has probably started a dozen poor, well-meaning mothers, in that country town where she went, encouraging their poor ignorant children to 'develop' their ego and 'liberate the libido.' And oh, what a time those poor things are going to have when they learn that other people's ego and other people's libido are going to be really rude to them some day!"

Grandma is not a woman of any great or unusual intelligence, and she isn't "in things" herself any more.

So she just sits in the bleachers and watches the game, and sometimes, I notice, she seems to see a good deal more of what happens than is seen by those who are playing the game.

Which makes it sometimes rather interesting for Grandma's friends, doesn't it?
